

'ASTRONOMICAL' NEEDS

Nobody Doing Much About It as Atlanta's Homeless Increase

By MARJORY SMITH.

Atlanta's housing situation is sort of like the weather. Everybody talks about it—and nobody seems to be able to do much about it.

The acutely critical shortage of homes, apartments, rooms, and even sleeping space throughout the nation—which, especially in its relation to the plight of homeless returning veterans, is getting government attention right now—is nowhere worse than in this city. "It's pathetic—tragic—it's driving us crazy!" is the united moan of federal, state and local officials trying to alleviate a congestion that grows worse with each new day's quota of house-hunting GIs.

4,000 HOMELESS VETS

Return of an estimated 4,000 homeless veterans to this area has aggravated a long-critical shortage to the point that such Atlanta housing experts as James H. Therrill, executive director of the Atlanta Housing Authority, and Clarence N. Walker, regional representative of the National Housing Agency, see no possible solution except passage of the Wagner-Elender bill (Senate Bill 1592) and additional federal aid to provide temporary shelter for veterans and other homeless persons.

Editor Ralph McGill calls for the legislature to be convened in special session to help solve the housing shortage, acute not only in Atlanta, but in many Georgia cities. For his suggestions on ways of solving the problem, turn to page 12 and read his editorial page column.

The Wagner-Elender bill, now under study by congress, is a general housing act intended to establish and execute a national housing policy to aid future private and public construction, they explain.

10,000 ASK FOR U. S. UNITS

Exact figures on the number of persons desperately in need of housing in Fulton and DeKalb counties are debatable—and, one housing agency official added wryly, "probably astronomical." Ten thousand applications for admittance to units in the Techwood, Clark Howell and Capitol Homes housing projects—many of them on file for as long as four years—are in the Atlanta Housing Authority files. Director Therrill points out that that figure accounts for only low-income groups in the city.

Since the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce's housing center supplanted the old war housing center two months ago, 1,274 persons have applied to Secretary J. W. Stephens for aid in finding rooms or apartments—only 107 successfully. John Heist, service officer of the American Legion, Atlanta Post No. 1, and Mrs. Legare Davis, chairman of the local USO home placement staff, long ago stopped counting the GI families who throng their offices daily. Mayor William Hartsfield estimates that 20,000 veterans will be returning to the Atlanta area, 10,000 of them married, and at least

Arnall Backs 12-Month Teacher Pay; 'Need Federal and More Local Aid'

By M. L. ST. JOHN.

Promising to ask the state legislature to add a 12th month's pay for teachers this school year, Gov. Arnall told the Georgia Education Association here last night that $120,000,000 could be made available for education in Georgia if the federal government and cities and counties would follow the state's example in increasing aid for schools.

His mention of the $120,000,000 figure—nearly four times what education is getting today—came shortly after the convention passed resolutions asking for approximately $38,000,000 from the state for common schools and the University System next year.

TO SPEND $8 MILLION

Gov. Arnall anticipated that the state would spend approximately $28,000,000 next year for education. But the federal government should participate in education, and the cities and counties should share a larger part of these expenses, he added.

The cities of Georgia last year spent only $5,500,000 for education, and all Georgia's counties combined spent only $5,200,000, the Governor reported. Under the new constitution, which permits local governments to increase their educational tax levy to 15 mills, cities can spend $16,500,000 and counties can spend $15,500,000, if they desire, Arnall said.

"It is obvious that even greater support must be provided through state financing if we are to have the kind of schools necessary to give every child in Georgia the educational opportunity that is deserved," Arnall said. "But let me divert to say that the local units of government must also increase their support to their schools."

A MAN WALKED UP AND GAVE PASTOR THE SUBSTANCE OF HIS CHAPEL DREAM

Dr. Stuart R. Oglesby, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, long has cherished the desire to build "the most beautiful chapel in Atlanta."

"Now I can see my dream coming true," he said yesterday at a luncheon welcoming a group of new Atlanta Methodist ministers.

"Through diligent work we had managed to raise $25,000 for the chapel, which will be open all day every day so that people may stop in and meditate and pray."

"A few days ago a man walked up to me and handed me a package, saying it was for the chapel dream. Then the man departed after I had promised not to reveal his identity. When I opened the package I found it contained $50,000 in cash."

"So my dream chapel, which will seat approximately 100 people, will get under way across the street from the state capital just as soon as building materials become available."

Huge U. S. Loan to Great Britain Opens Door to World Free Trade

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The United States agreed Thursday to give war-shaken Britain a credit of $4,400,000,000, provided congress is willing.

At the same time the two governments pledged to work together in an effort to achieve world-wide expansion of trade and job opportunities by reducing tariffs, cartels and other trade barriers.

In addition, they made a final settlement of lend-lease and other wartime financial dealings between this country and the United Kingdom.

Under terms of the loan agreement—announced simultaneously in Washington and London—Britain would have 55 years to repay. For the first five years she would pay nothing. In 1951 she would make the first of 50 installments, including interest of 2 per cent computed each year on the amount still owed.

Under certain adverse conditions—if British trade fell off badly and her money reserves dropped—the interest payment could be skipped in those years.

Assuming 50 full payments, the grand total repaid would be about $7,000,000,000. The last installment would fall due in the year 2001.

Of the total $4,400,000,000 credit, Britain would receive only $3,750,000,000 in cash—the amount of a loan which congress must approve.

The remainder—estimated at $650,000,000—is the amount the two governments agreed that Britain will owe this country after (1) lend-lease and reverse lend-lease accounts have been bal-

Franklin Simon Store To Go on Inman Site

HOWARD DENNY Announces Purchase

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

The old family residence of the late Samuel M. Inman, one of the pioneers of Atlanta, at the southeast corner of Peachtree street and Ponce de Leon avenue, has been purchased by the Nivell Corporation, a subsidiary of Franklin Simon, owner and operator of the largest and oldest specialty store on Fifth avenue, New York. The announcement was made by J. Howard Denny, president of the well-known New York establishment.

While no detailed information was disclosed as to the use of the property, it is understood that sometime during the coming year the old Inman residence will be demolished and in its place will be erected a modern store building, with large parking space, to be occupied by an elaborate and handsome fashion store operated by the Franklin Simon concern. Officials of the company indicate that further details will be announced at a later date.

No price consideration was disclosed for the property, which fronts 110 feet on Peachtree, extending back approximately 366 feet on Ponce de Leon, but it is understood the price paid was a most substantial sum.

The seller of the property was represented by Ward Wight & Company, through T. C. Erwin Jr., of Atlanta, and Argyle R. Parsons, of Douglas L. Elliman & Company, New York, and all legal details of the sale were handled by Douglas W. Matthews, of the firm of Brandon, Matthews, Long & Nall.

The lot upon which stands the Inman home was purchased in 1890 by Mr. Inman from the late Frank E. Block, and a few years later Mr. Inman built the home that has been the scene of many brilliant social affairs during the past half century. In it the Inmans entertained William Howard Taft, and while here he attended a big opussum supper held in Taft hall, city auditorium, in 1909. It is now occupied by Mrs. Inman, who will give up her half-century residence there sometime in the coming year.

It is understood that President Howard Denny, of Franklin Simon's, has contemplated a location in Atlanta for some time, and it now appears assured that a counterpart of his Fifth avenue store in New York will make its appearance here in the near future.

Ex-Justice Reid Back in States; Silent on Recent Political Rumors

Col. Charles S. Reid, former chief justice of the supreme court of Georgia, who laid down his judicial robes nearly three years ago to enter the United States Army as a lieutenant colonel, has returned to the United States after spending more than 20 months in the European theater of operations, and is now in Washington, D. C.

In a telephone interview last night he stated that he was sent back to the United States from Berlin by way of Paris on a special assignment for the War Department in Washington.

"I expect to be out of the Army in the early part of the new year," he said, "but as to what the future holds I am not yet prepared to say. You see, I'm still in the Army."

Recent rumors have said that Reid is planning to run in the next election for governor, but when asked for a statement he declined to say whether it was true or false.

His wife, the former Mrs. Agnes Baker, widow of Dr. Elliott L. Baker Jr., who was for many years a resident physician for the Georgia Baptist hospital, returned to New York by boat the very same day that he landed by plane, after serving with the American embassy in Madrid, Spain, for several months, and she and her husband are now together in Washington.

Before his entry into the service, Reid served the supreme court of Georgia as chief justice for five years.

Col. Reid stated that he expected to arrive in Atlanta with his wife sometime tomorrow whereupon he will spend a 30-day leave here. He then will return to Washington for a brief period of duty before being discharged from the Army.

TRAGEDY AND TEARS—Weeping bitterly, Mrs. Vera Blackson, 19-year-old mother, telephones relatives from St. Mary's hospital in Philadelphia to tell them her two children, Vera, 2, and George Jr., 3, died in a fire which destroyed their home Wednesday night while she was Christmas shopping in the downtown sections.

Alert Military at Pearl Would Have Smashed Japs

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—

Gen. Marshall testified Thursday that the Japanese, in assaulting Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941, took so tremendous a gamble that he didn't think they would try it.

The retired chief of staff told the joint committee investigating the disaster that there were forces at the Pacific base sufficient to have disrupted the enemy thrust. Such a result, he said, would have ruined the whole Japanese campaign of aggression.

"Non-alertness" in Hawaii, he said, was the reason for both the attack and its success. He testified that the prowling enemy fleet could have been recalled before the attack if the Japanese learned the defenders were ready.

Marshall said the risks of the attack were so big that he did not actually visualize it at that time, though his testimony recounted that for 18 months before and he had been concerned over the possibility of a surprise raid and had been taking precautions against it.

The general's testimony accompanied introduction of documents from the late President Roosevelt's secret files, including a memorandum from Marshall saying "Britain is reaching limit of usable manpower. We must supplement her forces."

The former chief of staff proposed to prepare task forces for bases in the British Isles and to "secure, when opportunity offers," additional bases encircling Germany.

"Germany cannot be defeated by supply of munitions to friendly powers and air and naval operations alone," Marshall wrote, "large ground forces will be required."

He also suggested speeding the increase of air power in the Philippines and "small increases" in ground army forces and equipment to "restrain Japan from advance into Malaysia or eastern Siberia."

Marshall argued against reducing the supply of America's own forces to send more arms to the British and Russians. He contended that while such a move would give the Allies temporary encouragement, it would convince the Germans they need not fear "an eventual onslaught of ground forces."

Another document from the Roosevelt files covered the Hawaiian defense situation. It mentioned the island of Oahu as "believed to be the strongest fortress in the world." Written across it, however, in what Gen. Marshall said was the handwriting of the late Maj. Gen. E. M. Watson, Mr. Roosevelt's military aide, was this notation:

"Modern planes have completely changed situation as to the defensibility."

That document, its source unshown, was marked as having been filed May 3, 1941.

It detailed a program for bringing

YOUR FIFTH OPPORTUNITY

Just $70 Bars Mrs. L. and Children From Self-Support and Happiness

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

A little money can make a large difference in the lives of some unfortunate families in our community. In fact, the comparatively small sum of $70 will spell the difference between happiness and despair for Mrs. L., mother of two children, who was left without income when her husband fell a victim of tuberculosis.

Yes, $35 a month for two months is all that is needed to restore this family to self-support and self-respect, according to an estimate made by the Family Welfare Society.

And that seems a paltry amount for which to write a necessities-of-life "insurance policy," guaranteeing food, clothing and shelter.

The case of the L. family provides Opportunity No. 5 in The Constitution's 1945 Opportunity Fund drive. It's an opportunity for you to contribute, and it will give some needy family an opportunity to cross the "slough of despond."

Mr. and Mrs. L. always had been able to cope with their own problems. Never before had they sought aid from an agency. They hate to do so now.

For years, Mr. L. had made a living for his family—his pretty wife, Mary, and his children, Sam, now 8, and Jane, 6. But he had not been able to save enough to tide them over a long period of unemployment.

Several months ago the doctors diagnosed Mr. L.'s frail condition as tuberculosis. He now is receiving medical care at a sanitarium, and will be there about two more months.

Meanwhile, Mrs. L. secured work, but her income was not sufficient to care for all the needs of herself and her children. She delved into their small savings, but now the last penny is gone. There are no relatives who can assist her during this emergency. But with $35 for the next two months, she can make it through to the time when her husband should be able to reassume his family responsibilities.

In spite of the hordes of shoppers thronging Atlanta stores with pocketbooks bulging with cash, numerous people are feeling the pressure of financial privation. They have been swept off balance by sudden disaster—through no fault of their own.

Warmer Weather, High of 55 Due

Atlantians will welcome the partly clear and warmer weather expected here today after several days of cold, wind, rain and clouds. Frost will probably be found in most portions of south Georgia this morning, the forecast predicts, but there will be occasional sunshine and higher temperatures throughout the state during the day.

Following low and high temperatures of 34 and 43 degrees yesterday, the mercury is expected to range between 34 and 55 degrees today.

SOS Lack Is Baffling To Navy

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 6.—(UP)—

The Navy reports 27 men missing in one of America's most mysterious air tragedies and has ordered a 24-hour search by an aircraft carrier, other surface craft and hundreds of planes for a large patrol bomber and five smaller Navy aircraft that mysteriously disappeared late Wednesday.

It was officially disclosed that five officers and eight enlisted men were aboard a mariner patrol bomber which reportedly crashed into the sea during a search mission for the other planes.

Fourteen men were flying the five Avenger torpedo bombers that took off from the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Naval Air Station on a routine flight and disappeared without a trace, without even a signal of distress.

After a fruitless day-long search, the Navy ordered a sharp lookout kept throughout the night in hopes that survivors may send up flares, either from the waters of the Atlantic or from the dismal Everglades.

It was believed that all the ships disappeared over the ocean, but a land crash was not ruled out as a possibility. The search was perhaps the most extensive ever launched from the continental United States.

The patrol bomber, one of three sent into the search, was officially listed by the Navy as "overdue." The customary procedure until wreckage or casualties are found. Earlier, the Coast Guard had reported the plane crashed and burned with a terrific explosion in Ponce de Leon inlet off Daytona Beach.

Officers worked late laying out flight plans for Friday over new areas of land and sea.

The Navy confessed that it was completely baffled by the disappearance of the Avengers, which were in command of a combat-trained flight leader. It was officially suggested that high winds over the sea may have driven

U. S. Puts Curb on Sizes Of Lard, Salad Packages

Housewives will buy their shortening, lard and salad cooking oils for a while longer in about the same package-sizes as during the period of rationing, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced.

In order to maintain approximately the same proportionate distribution of food fats and oils among institutional, household and industrial users, the department has issued an amendment of War Food Order 42, effective Jan. 1, 1946, which will restrict manufacturers of these products to approximately the same package-size distribution as at present.

REMEMBER FOUR YEARS AGO?

All Theaters Open Doors To V-Bond Buyers Today

Today is Free Movie Day. The motion pictures industry is observing the Pearl Harbor anniversary today throughout the country by offering you a free ticket to any movie in your community with the purchase of a Victory bond.

"The public is invited to attend any movie in Atlanta today by offering a Victory bond dated Dec. 7 to the box office," stated William K. Jenkins, state chairman of the Motion Pictures Industry division of the War Finance Committee. "Bond booths are open for your convenience at all motion picture theaters."

At all theaters in the city except Loe's Grand, which asks that you buy a bond at its booth, a bond purchased anywhere will entitle you to free admission, with the only stipulation that the bond is dated Dec. 7, 1945.

So, plan to buy a bond this Pearl Harbor Day, and remember the sneak attack the Japs sprang four years ago by attending the movie of your choice free. You are sure to enjoy the movie twice as much as usual.

Whether you have a few suitcases or many items of furniture to be removed, you can find somebody for the job by turning to Classification 84 — "Moving and Storage."

8 MAILING DAYS BEFORE CHRISTMAS

"Only eight more mailing days until Christmas!" That paraphrased warning comes from Postmaster Lon Livingston. The Atlanta postmaster yesterday again urged yuletide shoppers to get their gift parcels into the mails early enough to insure their being delivered before Christmas Day.

"Mail packages by Dec. 15—cards by Dec. 10," he reminded. Postal officials, who have added sufficient personnel and trucks to handle the city's Christmas mail rush, ask patrons' co-operation in early mailing, secure wrapping of parcels, and correct addressing.

Prompt action is necessary in replying to the attractive offers in the Want Ad pages of The Constitution.

9 Atlanta Methodist Pastors Welcomed Here at Luncheon

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Nine of the new Methodist pastors assigned pastorates in the Atlanta districts were honor guests yesterday of the Atlanta Methodist Ministerial Association at a welcome luncheon held at the Robert Fulton hotel.

The honor guests heard Dr. Stuart R. Oglesby, pastor of the Atlanta Central Presbyterian church, in a recital of that church's achievements and contribution to Atlanta's religious development. And the honor guests also joined with the Methodist Men's Club in sponsoring the Atlanta districts the campaign to raise $150,000 for Reinhardt College's endowment fund.

The new ministers attending the welcome luncheon, and names of the churches to which they are assigned, are as follows: E. C. Sweatnam, the Nellie Dodd Memorial W. L. Brackman, the Sylvan Hills church; C. Byrd Harbour, Grace church; H. A. McNeal, the Roswell church; F. L. Glickson, Trinity church; J. A. Grigsby, English Avenue church; Foster L. King, Fox Street church; T. W. Holbrook, Marietta Maple Avenue church, and Lawrence L. Cowen, the Park Street church.

The request made by Smith L. Johnston, director of the Reinhardt College endowment campaign fund, that the Methodist Men's Club assume responsibility for the special effort in the two Atlanta districts, was unanimously granted. The sum of $250,000 is sought in the entire North Georgia conference to meet a similar sum offered by Dr. Sam C. Dobbs. Of the $250,000 desired, citizens of Cherokee county will seek to raise $100,000, leaving the remaining $150,000 to be secured by the North Georgia conference.

"Sick babies saved the life of Atlanta's Central Presbyterian church," said Dr. Stuart R. Oglesby, pastor, as he told of how the church, under the lead of the late John J. Eagan some 25 years ago, sought to minister to the needs of the immediate community.

To illustrate his meaning, Dr. Oglesby told of how that church instituted a baby clinic, which now ministers to some 1,300 babies yearly, and has rendered service to more than 60,000 such cases during the past. Rendering this needed service, the downtown church gained new life and interest, until today the church has no intention ever of removing to the suburbs, but will remain where it is and carry on its daily continuous program of service.

'VICTORY FLAG' TO FLUTTER TODAY AT FIVE POINTS—BONDS WILL RAISE IT

In line with Mayor Hartsfield's proclamation of the period from Dec. 7 through Dec. 14 as Victory Loan Flag Week, a white flag with "Victory" in red letters will be placed on the flagpole at Five Points today.

A band will be on hand to give the colorful ceremonies a real musical send-off and a brief talk will be made by Mayor Hartsfield, who will be introduced by John Oliver, Fulton county bond chairman.

As the percentage which the city has reached in its Victory Loan bond quota increases, the flag will be raised each day until it reaches the top, representing 100 per cent of the quota. A barometer will be placed around the base and the percentage will be posted daily during this week, with space on one side naming all civic clubs sponsoring this program.

So watch the Victory Flag for Atlanta's record in the Victory Loan campaign.

Plan Revised For Selling Jeeps to Vets

A revised plan for selling Army Jeeps to veterans of World War II, designed to provide more equitable distribution, has been announced by the Surplus Property office, Consumer Goods Division, RFC.

Allotments, made on a nationwide basis so that veterans in each state will be given a proportionate number of vehicles, will supplant former procedure, according to B. Leo Wilson, regional director.

Originally RFC listed the number of jeeps available at various camps in the region and announced inspection days. Because some areas have more surplus jeeps than others, all requests now are sent to Washington, D. C., along with the necessary certificate from Smaller War Plants Corporation, and allotments are announced from Washington headquarters.

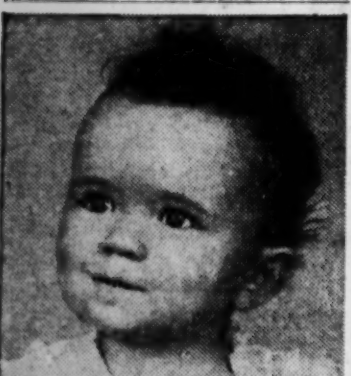

Requests by veterans in Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, North and South Carolina are handled through the Atlanta office at 105 Pryor street, N. E.

University Class On Field Trip Here

A class in public administration at the University of Georgia, taught by Dr. E. Foster Dowell, spent yesterday in Atlanta on a field trip for the purpose of gaining practical experience in the functioning of several state and national agencies.

Composed of two women and four men, all veterans, the class made the trip under the sponsorship of Richard K. Lyle, regional director, Federal Social Security Board, and Victor D. Carlson, regional representative, Bureau of Public Assistance.

The class also visited the Georgia department of public welfare and the Georgia department of labor.

500 Atlantans Set Off $401,000 YMCA Fund Drive

More than 500 Atlantans gathered last night at the Atlanta Biltmore to hear the opening of a campaign to raise $401,000 for the Atlanta YMCA.

Dr. William V. Gardner, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, opened the meeting with the invocation followed by an address by Harrison Jones, chairman of the citizens' campaign committee and presiding official of the meeting.

Jones opened his address with a history of the YMCA in Atlanta, explaining that the present building was completed in 1913 at an estimated cost of $600,000.

"I was married to the YMCA in that drive," Jones said, "and have been married to it ever since."

The present building, in use over 32 years, needs repairs and modernization. A new swimming pool, handball courts, and new dining rooms are needed. The building has seen heavy use during those years and needs a complete going over, Jones declared.

Estimated cost of these repairs is $341,000, leaving $60,000 with which the organization plans to build a boys' camp in Towns county. The site for the camp already has been purchased, and awaits the buildings and camp equipment.

Construction men and architects have examined the present YMCA building, and have estimated that it will serve another 30 years if proper repairs are made.

Robert B. Troutman and George Winship also spoke in behalf of the project. Winship pointed out that a million service men have

Cox Forces House to Consider Bills on Strike Control

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(UP) House leaders Thursday reluctantly agreed to schedule floor debate next week on legislation which would impose heavy penalties on labor unions which violate "no strike" pledges.

They also agreed to bring up a bill that would make it a legal offense for any labor union to interfere with interstate commerce by "robbery or extortion."

Both measures are so much more drastic than President Truman's proposal for fact-finding boards in serious labor disputes that administration leaders had hoped to defer them until the White House request has been acted upon.

Rep. Eugene Cox, Democrat, Georgia, member of the House Rules Committee which approved the penalty bill, told Democratic Leader John W. McCormack, Massachusetts, that he would call the measure up himself unless leaders scheduled it for debate. He said he felt that this was "my duty to my country."

"In that case," McCormack replied, "I shall be glad to put it on the program."

MARSHALL WRONG

Nazis Lagged In Atom Race, Probe Shows

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—S. A. Goudsmit, chief of an Army intelligence mission to Germany, asserted Thursday the Nazis never got close to learning the secret of the atomic bomb.

The University of Michigan physics professor testified before the Senate-House Atomic Committee. Earlier, the group heard a vivid account of how rays given off by atomic bombs killed Japanese weeks after the blasts which destroyed Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Goudsmit, whose mission was assigned to learn German atomic progress, declared the Nazis felt their research was far ahead of any Allied effort.

But despite "preliminary press reports," Goudsmit said, "we can say the Germans did not have anything at all. They were way behind. Their scientists simply did not have the vision and Germany had abandoned the bomb project for this war."

Chairman McMahon, Democrat, Connecticut, suggested that Gen. Marshall, former chief of staff, had been wrong in speaking of a race between Germany and the Allies in developing the weapon.

Goudsmit said apparently we knew as little about Germany's progress as they did about ours. He added, however, that the United States learned definitely a year ago that German progress was nil. "So, if Gen. Marshall talked about a race it was the turtle and the hare?" asked McMahon.

The witness nodded.

Dr. Philip Morrison, who helped assemble the atomic bombs that fell on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, described how rays emitted after the blasts strangely affected the blood and made the victims a prey to fatal infection.

'Red' Leathers To Be Awarded Legion of Merit

"Red" Leathers, Georgia's star guard who won fame for tackling Yale's lettermen back in 1929, '30 and '31, tackled the problem of shipping ammunition to Allied governments on lend-lease and won the Legion of Merit.

In ceremonies at the military department of the University of Georgia at 11:30 a. m. today, Col. George D. Barnes, commanding officer of the Atlanta Ordnance Depot, will award the Legion of Merit to Lt. Col. Leon N. Leathers, of Athens.

LEATHERS' ACHIEVEMENT

While serving in the international branch of the ammunition supply division of the office of the chief of ordnance in Washington, Leathers "of his own initiative" devised a new, quicker and more economical system for the transfer of ammunition to Allied countries under lend-lease.

A reserve officer, Leathers was called to active duty as a second lieutenant in March, 1942. During three years' service in the office of the chief of ordnance, he rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel. The system which he devised called for the use of credits in lieu of the then existing practice of physically earmarking material at specific ordnance depots for definite foreign governments.

"This procedure," the citation reads, "materially accelerated the export of ammunition to war fronts during a period when it was urgently needed and further resulted in large savings to this government in money, manpower and critically needed shipping space. The successful formulation and working of this plan reflects great initiative and untiring devotion to duty."

The presentation of the Legion of Merit to Georgia's gridiron star will be made in the presence of university officials, including Pres. Harmon Caldwell.

GEA Parley Highlights

By RUTH BRIGHAM.
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

CITY AUDITORIUM—This is one convention they're really attending—en masse. Delegates to the Georgia Education Association's 79th annual convention are not being lured into Atlanta's gaily decorated stores—for this is the convention where they talk about money, not spend it.

That seems to be the prevailing keynote. As Dr. N. L. Galloway, professor of psychology at the Junior College, of Richmond county, Augusta, replied when someone humorously asked if he could afford the $2.25 banquet tonight: "That's what I'm here for—help fix things so I can afford it."

On the serious side, Dr. Galloway expressed pleasure in the increased numbers of students showing interest in psychology. Formerly, he says, "it was generally thought of as something akin to fortune telling. But people are now curious and interested instead of suspicious. That is due largely to the use of psychology by the military services. Returning veterans want to know more about business, advertising and selling psychology—but applied psychology, practical in daily life, is still the most popular form of the subject."

Two of the happiest persons at the GEA convention are Dr. Mark Smith, superintendent of Bibb county schools, and his pretty brunette daughter-in-law, Mrs. Mark Smith Jr.

This morning, as she was selling tickets for tonight's banquet, young Mrs. Smith had a call from her lieutenant husband who is in Berne, Switzerland. Her eyes were glowing for the rest of the day as she told friends that he expected to be home by March.

Dr. Smith, who was in committee meeting during the call, says he didn't get to talk to his son—he only paid the bill.

One of Chatham county's most interested delegates is Ware Beall, of Savannah, president of his county's unit of GEA. Beall, who teaches chemistry at Savannah High school, says chief interest of his county is money.

"We've got to get it from some-

GERMAN YULETIDE SOUNDS SOUR NOTE

BERLIN, Dec. 6. — (AP) — Amid chill and shortages, Germans opened the Christmas season today with the celebration of St. Nikolaus Day, an overture to Christmas on which children put their shoes outside the bedroom doors for parents to fill with sweets and fruits.

A commentary on the post-war observance was a Berliner Zeitung cartoon showing a parent approaching a door and finding a pair of shoes there — chained and locked. The caption read: "Safety First on St. Nikolaus Day."

The Christmas mart will open Saturday at the Lustgarten near the bomb-blasted Hohenzollern Castle. There will be a children's fair and concessions for the sale of small toys.

The first Christmas trees arrived in the city today. Between 70,000 and 100,000 have been promised Berlin from the Soviet zone and another 10,000 from the British-occupied zone.

where, either state or local, and there doesn't seem much prospect of additional local funds. The tremendous influx of population in Savannah has made more people to be served, while there is no extra property to be taxed.

Since there doesn't seem much likelihood of Lanham act funds continued, he's "hopeful" the state will do something about that.

Columbus, like other Georgia cities, has a serious teacher deficit, says W. B. Trammell, director of the third district of GEA. He's an elementary principal in Columbus.

Columbus apparently is one place where the Army wife has been appreciated, for Trammell says he doesn't know what they would have done if they hadn't been able to call on Army wives to do supply work.

Other members of the Muscogee delegation include Mrs. H. C. McCutcheon, Miss Jessie Beard, Miss Joan Warner and Miss Annie V. Vassey.

85,728 Passed Through

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6. — (AP) — A record of 85,728 servicemen and civilians passed through the Golden Gate in November returning from the Pacific war theater, Maj. Gen. Homer M. Groninger, commander of the San Francisco port of embarkation, announced Thursday.

October was the previous high month with 77,886 debarkees.

Educators' Conference Ends Today

The last meeting of a two-day conference being held by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, in the Biltmore hotel, will be brought to a close today following several group discussions and closed sessions to discuss the future advancement of higher education.

Conferences similar to the one ending today, were held at Seawee Military Academy in 1941 and 1942 in an effort to explore the educational problems for the future. At these meetings several different subjects were discussed, including instruction, extra curricular, the liberal arts program and student guidance.

Roscoe E. Parker, of the University of Tennessee, executive secretary for the Southern Association, stated that although the war had interrupted many of the associations' plans and meetings, studies have been going on during the war, and that they will be stepped up now that the war is over.

Chancellor Oliver Carmichael, of Vanderbilt University, is chairman of the group, which is laying the foundation for a work conference of educators next summer to set the policies which will guide southern schools and colleges in the future. Next summer's conference will analyze past reports of other conferences and will prepare a report on the major problems in southern education.

Others attending the meeting are: Edgar W. Knight, of the University of North Carolina; Dean J. H. Purks, of Emory University; Dean Roger McCutcheon, Tulane University; Dr. W. S. Hoole, director of libraries at the University of Alabama; Dr. J. A. Poffett, president of William and Mary College; Dr. Blair Buck, director of teachers' education for the Virginia State Department of Education; Dean Phillip Davidson, Vanderbilt University, and Dr. E. A. Sutherland, director of the Hoge Foundation at the University of Texas.

Two members of the committee who were unable to attend the meeting are: Dr. Gordon Blackwell, of the University of North Carolina, and Dean A. P. Brogan, of the University of Texas.

Union Rejects General Motors' Offer

DETROIT, Dec. 6. — (AP) — The United Auto Workers (CIO) Thursday night rejected a General Motors offer to "reinstatement" its offer of 10 per cent wage rate increase which the union turned down prior to the start of the GM strike 16 days ago.

Walter Reuther, UAW vice president, told a press conference after the meeting between GM and UAW officials adjourned, "the strike continues with no change in status."

Both GM and UAW spokesmen said, however, that another negotiating session would be held Friday.

Harry W. Anderson, GM vice president, said in a prepared statement, "the offer to the auto workers was made on a 10 per cent basis subject to a final adjustment after detailed analysis."

Reuther, commenting on the company offer, declared, "the corporation still refuses to discuss arithmetic and the fact that ability to pay should be a factor in wage discussions."

"We still maintain that an adequate wage to settle this strike is a 30 per cent increase without increase in prices."

R. J. Thomas, president of the UAW, added, "I told the corporation that it was my opinion that the proffered wage increase was inadequate. And the strike will continue until such time as an agreement has been made on satisfactory terms."

Reuther told newsmen that during the conference a GM spokesman declared, "We don't say we can't pay 30 per cent; we won't discuss it."

Thomas interjected that he asked directly if GM could afford to pay the 30 per cent, but that GM spokesman refused to answer. Reuther reiterated the union stand that it does not want to "take a wage increase if it means increased prices." He said "90 per cent of the conference was spent in trying to get the company to discuss economics."

The union officials disclosed that there was no discussion at the session on the company's charges that the UAW had engaged in "illegal picketing."

"We will try to get these people to accept some very sound practices in collective bargaining involving arithmetic. We are going to keep trying and trying," Reuther concluded.

Thursday's meeting marked the first time GM and UAW officials had conferred since the walkout hit 213,000 GM workers in 20 states.

USS Rhona Survivors Reach U. S.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—

Three GI brides and several survivors of America's worst troopship disaster of the war arrived Thursday aboard the Navy transport Gen. A. W. Greely.

The Greely, which brought 3,097 passengers from Calcutta, India, had a rough Atlantic crossing, storm-lashed seas causing it to roll as much as 30 degrees at times.

The naval disaster survivors were personnel aboard the troopship Rhona when it was sunk in the Mediterranean on Thanksgiving Day, 1943, with a loss of 1,145 American soldiers.

Another transport which put into port Thursday was the Navy troopship LeJeune, which carried 4,564 returning servicemen, 25 civilians and 25 German scientists. Authorities declined to give any information as to why the scientists were aboard and newsmen were not allowed to question them.

The Greely and LeJeune were two of 10 transports, carrying about 12,300 servicemen, scheduled to arrive in east coast ports Thursday. The Torrens, originally scheduled, was delayed until Friday. At least 23 others, bringing home 12,200 Pacific veterans, were due on the west coast.

cal condition. During the war it was not financially possible to invest heavily in books although we did increase our library expenditures. It also was apparent that there would be many revisions needed in postwar textbooks. After all, the frontiers of sciences have undergone about as extensive changes since 1940, as the frontiers of many nations. But textbooks are the tools with which teachers and students work. We will provide the necessary tools. Georgia children will have the school books they need—better books than ever before."

BUILDINGS URGED

The governor expressed hope that every Georgia community will make definite plans to construct the school buildings they need. He anticipated a considerable amount of federal money soon to aid in school building construction, and said the state agencies will co-operate with the local governments in obtaining school facilities.

"The school buildings are the homes, through a great part of the year, of both young people and teachers," Arnall remarked. "The school house ought to be the most important public building in each community."

Low salaries alone do not make teaching an uninviting occupation, the Governor pointed out. Low salaries alone are not responsible for the teacher shortage. A person does not enter the teaching profession to get rich. A teacher has a right to just compensation, to a good school house with a solid roof, and to adequate textbooks and supplies.

"Teachers also are entitled to be treated as human beings," Arnall declared. "They ought not to be made into community drudges, to perform every odd-job that needs to be done, but that is too tedious or onerous or tiresome for someone else to do."

ous or onerous or tiresome for someone else to do.

"They ought not to be subject to rules and restrictions that set them apart from the communities of which they are a part. They ought to be warned against indulgence in even the most innocent amusement. They ought to be a part of the whole life of the town or county where they live, not a group of whom much is expected and to whom little is returned except a few perfunctory platitudes about the sacredness of their trust and the probable reward, in terms of satisfaction, that might be obtained by long self-sacrifice. Platitudes of that kind neither pay bills nor make teachers feel a part of the communities they live in. The least—and the most—that we can do for a teacher is to treat the teacher as a human being," the Governor said.

Reviewing the accomplishments of his administration, Gov. Arnall said Georgia today stands fourth in the nation in the percentage of funds for schools by the state.

STOP STABBING PAIN OF BACKACHE
Here's the clean, modern way to relieve simple backache. Johnson's Back Plaster! Ease pain, stiffness, strain. Feels great! At all drug stores. Insist on Johnson & Johnson quality.

Once it stood forty-seventh. Georgia stands first in the whole nation in the percentage of total state income devoted to education.

Ten years ago, Georgia gave only $7,383,000 to its common schools, Arnall recalled. The year before the present administration took office, the schools got $15,500,000. The present administration increased school expenditures about 50 per cent in three years.

The present administration freed schools from political control by setting up a constitutional board of education. It set up a teacher retirement system, and launched a trades school program.

OTHERS SPEAK
Bruce Thomas, free-lance war correspondent; John Temple Graves, Birmingham editor, and Howard Dawson, of the National Education Association, were other speakers last night.

Thomas told the convention that the comeback of the liberated peoples is the business of every American. "They cannot pick up their own bag of bones and rebuild their own social skeleton," he declared. "We have got to help them."

He urged every possible help for the people of Europe either in the form of UNRRA or individual aid, saying: "An 11-pound box of food may save a life; a few dollars will perform a miracle." While he appealed for aid for the liberated peoples, Thomas warned America against "too easy" treatment of Germany. He objected to America fighting a "hard war and only talking a hard peace."

Thomas deplored the fact that American soldiers returned to this country with a bad opinion of people of the occupied countries, and he described as "malarkey" the current suspicion of Russia in this country. He attributed such questions as "When are we going to fight the Russians?" to German propaganda started in America two years ago.

Graves said that the only hope for the world against war in this "year one of the atom age" is democracy.

This bomb has ended the world's sense of security; it has ended freedom from fear, but it has not ended liberty, he said. "The answer to the atom bomb is democracy—because democracies don't make war," Graves asserted. "We cannot have democracy without character, however, and we have lost character. We need a religious capacity. It is possible that the bomb can bring about the greatest spiritual and cultural revival in history."

Two great powers are left inheriting the earth today, Graves continued. They are the United States and Russia—two strangers who cannot agree on democracy. He said these two nations will get along by compromise, without America conceding one iota of American democracy.

Graves scored "progressive education" which took restraints off youth. Some are advocating compulsory military training to offset 25 years of "progressive education," he said.

EDUCATORS' PROGRAM

The 600 educators attending the meeting yesterday asked the Georgia legislature to provide funds for a 50 per cent pay increase; passed resolutions urging the legislature to guarantee an adequate school program regardless of the attitude of future governors toward educational spending; asked for passage of legislation to classify and pay school superintendents according to personal and educational qualifications; endorsed a school transportation bill passed by the senate and now pending in the house and elected E. Russell, of Floyd county, as president of the GEA and elected the following directors:

R. E. Hood, of Glynn county, was elected GEA director from the Eighth Congressional district; V. G. Glenn, of Swainsboro, director from the First district, and Gordon Holston, of Upson county, was elected director from the Fourth district. Dr. George Sparks, of Georgia Evening College, Atlanta, was re-elected trustee of the Teacher Retirement System.

He had been with Shell as manager of the aviation department for 10 years when he was recalled to active duty with the air force in 1940. He had served with the air force from 1917 until 1930, returning with the rank of first lieutenant.

At the time of the famous raid on Tokyo, in which a group of B-25 Mitchell bombers took off from the carrier Hornet, Doolittle was a lieutenant colonel.

Heard McVay Shout Order To Leave Ship, Witness Says

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A survivor of the ill-fated cruiser Indianapolis Thursday expressed a firm belief that "no one could know the ship was going to sink until she took her last list and started to roll over."

Chief Gunner Cecil Harrison, of Long Beach, Calif., was a witness before the Navy general court-martial trying the ship's commanding officer, Capt. Charles B. McVay III, on charges of negligence and inefficiency in the loss of the ship.

Harrison said he had just come on watch at midnight July 29-30 and was standing on deck as the ship steamed on a steady course at a speed of about 17 knots, en route from Guam to Leyte.

There was a sudden flash and explosion, followed quickly by another, he said. After the explosion the ship settled about level and still was riding high in the water. After several minutes the vessel took a slight list, he said, and held that position for several more minutes. Then, he said, there was a severe, sudden list, and the ship continued to roll until she sank, about 15 minutes after the explosions.

Specifications supporting the charge of inefficiency against

Capt. McVay accused him of failing to issue "timely" orders to abandon ship, resulting in the loss of many lives.

One of the 12 survivors of the ship who testified Thursday said he heard Capt. McVay shout orders from the bridge to abandon ship about 10 minutes after the explosion.

Coxswain Edward H. Keyes, of Antigo, Wis., on duty on the captain's bridge as boatswain's mate of the watch, testified his first act after the explosion was to check the ship's loudspeaker system. He found it out of order, which he reported to the officer of the deck.

He was then ordered below to pass the word to all hands to go topside. He said he carried out that order in the aft section of the ship, but was unable to get forward. Few men were remaining below, he said.

He reported back to the bridge in about five minutes, he said, and five minutes after he returned Capt. McVay shouted orders to men lined up on deck to abandon ship.

Vote Steel Strike

Employees of the Atlantic Steel Company have voted, 585 to 30, to strike, officials of the United Steel Workers, CIO, have announced. No definite date has been set for a strike, and the vote, taken yesterday, was a part of the poll being made in all steel mills on steel workers' demands for a raise.

Army Plane Crashes; 14 Reported Killed

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A farmer from the interior of the Argentine province of Corrientes reported Thursday night that an American C-47 transport plane believed to be one missing since Monday had crashed 20 miles south of Colonia Pellegrini and that all 14 occupants were dead.

The farmer said the plane came down on the edge of a small lake and burned.

The transport was carrying members of a U. S. Army geographic mission from Asuncion, Paraguay, to Montevideo, Uruguay. When last reported it was flying in a southeasterly direction through a heavy wind and rain storm.

The mission had been in Paraguay since last July.

In addition to the crew and members of the mission, the legal attaché of the U. E. embassy at Asuncion was aboard en route to the United States to take up another post.

FORMER CONSTITUTION REPORTER WINS ADVANCE STUDY WITH MET EXPERTS

Julia Virginia Snell, former Constitution reporter, has been accepted by the Metropolitan Opera Company for advanced study in lyric soprano operatic repertoire following a recent audition before Desire Defrere, stage director, and Fritz Mahler, conductor.

She will begin her study in New York early in 1946. Mrs. Snell majored in opera at Louisiana State University, where she was the pupil of the late Pasquale Amato, former leading Metropolitan baritone, and Ralph Errolle, former leading Metropolitan tenor.

She sang the role of Musetta in the L. S. U. production of Puccini's "La Boheme," and the title role of Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta" with a traveling stock company.

Mrs. Snell was assistant director of The Constitution's Marietta News Bureau from April, 1944, to July, 1945. She is the wife of Pvt. David Snell, of the Army, also a former Constitution reporter. She is a native of Fitzhugh, Ark. The Snells have a young son.

Child Labor Discussed By Citizens' Council

Arthur Daniel, president of the Southern Circulation Managers' Association, spoke to the child labor section of the Georgia Citizens' Council on the newspapers' attitude toward child labor at a meeting last night at the Robert Fulton hotel.

Mrs. Frances Dwyer, chairman of the child labor section, led an informal discussion on steps to be taken by the group to insure passage of a new child labor bill at the January session of the state legislature.

Hurley Lays Iran Blunder To Acheson

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley charged Thursday in a turbulent appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the present undersecretary of state, Dean Acheson, and other State Department career men had achieved the defeat of American foreign policy in Iran.

Acheson "took a leading part" in bringing this about, Hurley declared, following up his earlier assertion that the undersecretary had both "destroyed" and "defeated" administration policy in the little nation that was the scene of the Tehran conference.

"I don't know how many career men assisted him (Acheson) in defeat of the policy, but I do know it was defeated," the former ambassador to China said.

The soldier-diplomat brushed frequently with Chairman Connally, Democrat, Texas, and other committee members at a stormy session.

"Let me be frank," Hurley said. "In the defeat of the foreign policy of President Roosevelt and former Secretary of State Stettinius, I believe Mr. Dean Acheson took a leading part."

Hurley said documents he has asked the State Department to produce could substantiate this.

He added that until they have been made available, "I feel such a keen interest in the foreign policy of my nation, I would like to forego discussing the document."

25,000 Surplus Tires Will Go on Sale Soon

Immediate sale throughout the country of 25,000 surplus used, but sound and rescaped, highway tread tires and tubes to three priority groups has been announced by the Office of Surplus Property, Consumer Goods Division, RFC.

Regions which have accumulated stocks of the used tires and tubes are currently disposing of them through regional offices, with prospective purchasers in this area being handled through the RFC office at 105 Pryor street, N. E.

Priority groups eligible are federal agencies, state and local government agencies, and veterans certified by the Smaller War Plants Corporation.

Last WACS Depart

CALCUTTA, India, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Thirty-two WACs, the last contingent in the China-India-Burma zone, departed Thursday by plane for the United States.

Twelve of the more than 100 WACs who served here since August, 1944, were married during their tour of duty—10 to Americans and two to British RAF sergeants.

STYLISTS DECREE NEW HAIR-DO

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Okay, gals, you can let your hair down.

But it's going half-way up again—this time over one ear, if coiffure confections dreamed up before 1,000 hairdressers meeting here are any indication.

"No more topknots for the smart set," decreed M. Louis, nationally known hair stylist, as he demonstrated his version of the new off-center hairdo.

Cut to about four-inch length, the hair is swooped up and over into a whirl at one side of the head, leaving the top flat and unadorned.

"At least it provides a resting place for a hat," commented M. Louis.

Tech Vet 'Haven' Fast Being Filled

Georgia Tech's "Heaven Haven"—more commonly known as the Marietta Place Housing project, is rapidly filling up with veteran engineering students, their wives and families.

More than 200 families have been settled in the three, four and five-room apartment units, made available to veterans for $15 to $26 a month, according to R. R. Cameron, project manager.

Maj. B. L. Brown, co-ordinator of veteran affairs at Tech, said that applications are being received from almost every state. Georgia Tech was the first of any college or university in the U. S. to provide low-cost housing for married veterans and is still the only one having regular apartment units, officials said. Balance of the 500 units in the project are expected to be filled by students and their families weeks before opening of Tech's spring term March 1.

WASP TO RUSH GLs HOME FOR YULE

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 6.—(AP)—The Aircraft Carrier Wasp is undergoing minor repairs at the Naval station here in preparation for a trip to Southampton, England, where she will pick up more than 5,000 servicemen and attempt to get them to New York by Christmas Eve or Christmas Day.

Fifth Naval District headquarters said Thursday the Wasp is due to sail from Norfolk Tuesday or Wednesday, meaning the fast carrier will have to travel at a high rate of speed in order to make the round trip in 13 days.

The Wasp arrived Tuesday at Newport News with 5,700 home-bound veterans from Naples. This was the maiden voyage of the famed carrier in troop transport service.

AWVS WORKERS HONORED—These two officers of the Atlanta American Women's Voluntary Service are shown just before they received an orchid apiece from A. A. Murphey, of the Georgia War Finance Committee, at a dinner given last night in recognition of the work of the AWVS during recent bond drives. At the left is Mrs. Charles Huckle, chairman of the bond division, and to her right, Mrs. Robert Neel, president of the AWVS.

Dinner Honors AWVS for Aid In Bond Drives

High praise for the work the women of the AWVS have done in connection with recent bond drives was voiced by Thomas L. Camp, who was until recently executive manager of the War Finance Committee of Georgia, at a testimonial dinner given in honor of the AWVS at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

A. A. Murphey, chairman of special events of the WFC, acted as toastmaster at a dinner last night and presented orchids to Mrs. Robert Neel and Mrs. Charles Huckle, of the women's organization.

Murphey commented on the many other war jobs the AWVS has done, from salvage drives to classes in first aid and Spanish, in addition to their sale of $40,000,000 in war bonds during eight drives.

Individual citations from the U. S. Treasury Department were presented each member in recognition of her bond work.

Bond officials presented by Murphey were John E. Oliver, Fulton county bond chairman, and Miss Tullie Smith, who represented Boyd Smith, DeKalb county chairman.

Ex-Atlantan Gets Post On Japanese Affairs

William T. Turner, former Atlanta resident and son of Mrs. W. P. Turner, of 2417 Edinburg terrace, has been named chief of the division of Japanese affairs in the U. S. State Department. He succeeds Earl R. Dickover, appointed adviser to the newly created Far Eastern advisory commission.

Turner is a graduate of Emory University. A language instructor in the Orient for two years, he joined the diplomatic service in 1924 and served as consul at Dairen in Manchuria and later as second secretary to the American embassy.

Returned by the Japanese after Pearl Harbor, he returned to the U. S. on the first trip of the diplomatic exchange ship the Gripsholm.

12 Seized on Charges Of Peddling 'Corn' Sugar

By ROBERT RUTHERFORD.

The lush pre-Christmas bootlegging industry in Atlanta has suffered a severe blow with the arrest of 12 Negroes, who, city detectives charge, have been furnishing stolen sugar in wholesale quantities for the manufacture of corn whisky.

Detectives W. M. Cox and M. V. Moss, who arrested the 12 in an investigation that covered three days and three nights, said the Negroes had admitted breaking into the Jacobs Drug Company commissary on Auburn avenue on four occasions and also breaking into the Lane Drug Company storehouse at 457 Courtland street, Northeast.

The five burglaries netted more than 3,100 pounds of sugar, detectives said, and went directly from the hands of the burglars into the hands of whisky makers.

In signed statements, the Negroes told of breaking into the Jacobs store on Nov. 5 and taking

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Despite a late train, a misunderstanding, and thousands of hustling commuters, Tommy Manville and his eighth bride-to-be, British-born Georgina Campbell, 27, met Thursday in Grand Central station.

"I guess she stood me up," said Tommy after he met three trains without success. But a few minutes later Miss Campbell, who came from California, rushed into his arms with an explanation that she had arrived on a different train than Tommy expected and had been delayed.

Tommy's premarital statement had a familiar ring: "She is more talented than all of my other wives. This is my last marriage. This has got to be serious. I am getting very old very quickly, and I am definitely broke."

He obtained the wedding license Tuesday in Greenwich, Conn., but cannot use it until Sunday because of Connecticut's five-day waiting period.

four 100-pound sacks of sugar and of returning Nov. 9, Nov. 16 and Dec. 5 to take five 100-pound sacks each trip, Moss and Cox related.

The first 400 pounds was sold for $40, while the 500 pounds taken Nov. 9 brought $55 and the 500 pounds stolen Nov. 16 sold for $50. Moss and Cox seized the 500 pounds stolen Dec. 5 at a garage on Fifth street before it could be turned over to the buyers.

Five of the Negroes also signed statements admitting they broke into the Lane store Dec. 1, loaded 1,200 pounds of sugar into a company truck and delivered it to an alley on Pine street. They said they were never paid for the sugar.

The Lane company posted a $500 reward for the arrest of the persons who burglarized the storehouse.

In the statements, detectives said the Negroes also admitted breaking into the Lane storehouse shortly before Thanksgiving and taking two barrels of turkeys, two large cakes of cheese and a case of eggs. Police said they told of taking a company truck to deliver the stolen goods to a prospective buyer.

Both the trucks used to haul off the sugar and the other items were found abandoned on the streets.

Locked up on suspicion of burglary charges are Albert Daniel, 22, of 181 Harris street, N. E.; John Jennings, 18, of a Pine street address; William Hubbard, 29, of 234 Linden street; Ruby Jones, of 234-A Linden street; Julius Blacksmith, 19, of 181 Meritt avenue; I. J. Barksdale, 19, of 383 Ponders alley; C. B. Wilcher, 17, of 234 Linden street; Robert Fletcher, 18, of 311 Butler street, and Eleazer Smith, 16, of Piedmont avenue.

Moss and Cox booked cases of receiving stolen goods against Cora Miller, 37, of 216 Pine street; Hattie Roper, rear of 367 Fifth street, and H. Milner, 27, of 216 Pine street.

Polluted Water Blamed in Illness Throughout State

Despite the progress in public sanitation made in Georgia during the past decade, medical statistics presented at the 14th annual session of the Georgia Water and Sewage Association here showed that nine out of 10 illnesses in many areas of the state are caused by polluted water.

Additional statistics presented at the meeting at Georgia Tech indicated that only one-half of Georgia's communities have public water systems and only one-third possess adequate sewage facilities.

Tech President Blake R. Van Leer said the school's department of biology and public health now stands ready to assist any community in solving its public health program.

At the close of the conference the following new officers were elected: W. C. Bryant, superintendent of water, light and sewerage, Griffin, Ga., president; Comer Turley, chief engineer, Pepperhill Manufacturing Co., Lindale, Ga., vice president; R. L. Coburn, superintendent of water, light and sewerage, Fitzgerald, Ga., vice president, and Van P. Enloe, superintendent of R. M. Clayton's sewerage treatment plant, Atlanta, secretary-treasurer.

them off their course, exhausting gasoline supplies before they could reach their home fields.

But there was no explanation at Navy headquarters as to why none of the planes had been able to radio an SOS for help. All had elaborate radio equipment.

The weather was generally fair, although there were occasional showers and brisk winds in the flight area.

Rear Adm. Ralph E. Davidson, chief of naval air operations in the Florida east coast area, ordered a full-dress investigation into the ill-fated flight while at the same time setting in motion an elaborate search mission.

CARRIER JOINS IN

The escort carrier Solomons, manned by student pilots on a routine school problem, happened to be in the vicinity and put about to race at full speed to join in the search. The carrier normally carries between 25 and 30 planes.

The Royal Air Force helped also, ordering up planes from Windsor field in the Bahamas. The Army sent up a giant B-29 superfortress on "Dumbo" patrol over the sea. Under its belly was lashed a rubber life raft which would be dropped if survivors were spotted.

The patrol bomber which crashed near Daytona Beach was from the Banana river (Fla.) naval station.

Three Dixie Roads In Pullman Bidding

Three southern railroads, the Atlanta and West Point, the Alabama Great Southern, and the Georgia Southern and Florida, have joined a group of 36 railroad companies which is attempting to buy the sleeping car service of the Pullman Company.

Pullman, Inc., owner of the service, has been ordered by federal court to separate it from its manufacturing business, and has accepted the railroads' offer of $75,000,000. A special court will hear arguments Monday in support of four other bidders seeking the business.

Pearl Harbor, Four Years After

It was four years ago today that the Japanese struck our fleet at a devastating blow at Pearl Harbor, precipitating us into a war for which we were most inadequately prepared.

The intervening quadrennium has seen the Axis routed on every front, submitting in the end to the unconditional surrender terms which not a few Americans had held impossible to bring about.

Although at great cost, we have won a great victory. How unthinkable, then, that we should fail to utilize it to the fullest; that, to put it tritely, having won the war, we should lose the peace.

Yet there are ominous signs in the wind—

The Pearl Harbor probe goes on, revealing nothing new, yet opening old wounds, stirring old hatreds, endeavoring to revile the memory of a man who—more than any other—was responsible, not for Pearl Harbor, but for the victory which followed it.

Our foreign relations are at an ebb. The Allied solidarity which Goebbels and his henchmen were unable to breach is crumbling before the thoughtless sniping of Russian and British baiters in our midst.

On the home front, strikes hamper our reconversion efforts. Management and labor refuse to compromise, steadfastly declining to make the slightest concessions. Goods are being held off the market pending the abolition of excise taxes and inflation continues to grow. We have more ready cash and less ready goods than ever before and yet the current Victory Loan drive—which ends tomorrow—has reached only 55 per cent of its E-bond goal.

In Washington, the President's legislative program for reconversion has been thwarted at every turn. Compulsory military training seems a hopeless cause. So does the proposed merger of the armed forces, a reform which our wartime experience proved was badly needed.

Four years after Pearl Harbor, in short, finds us as inadequately prepared for peace as Dec. 7, 1941, found us unready for war.

We won the military victory because the nature of the emergency in which we found ourselves was such everyone realized that a total, all-out effort was necessary. Unless and until we realize that we face a similar crisis today, there is a dangerous probability of losing the peace.

His Honor, Mayor Hartfield, and Council

The Constitution finds it pleasant to read the election returns and see that His Honor the Mayor, William B. Hartfield, has been returned to office by a good, sound, comfortable majority.

Mayor Hartfield has been a good mayor. In fact, we cannot think of a better one. We congratulate the Mayor. A good council, too, has been elected to office. May we suggest to these gentlemen that, despite the fact only a few citizens voted, this is a time when the people expect all due co-operation and courage to meet the future in a very troubled world.

Good luck and congratulations to you all, and in extending it The Constitution pledges all of you its support and understanding in every worthy effort to create a better Atlanta.

That County Manager Need

It is now, The Constitution assumes, obvious to all residents of Fulton county that our system of county government needs revision along the lines of economy and efficient, business-like government directed by an able, trained man who can give his whole time to the job of managing what is one of the largest corporations in the state—and the one with the most stockholders.

Fulton county needs a county manager who would carry out the policies of government in a business-like manner, avoiding waste, duplication and dubious services.

His salary should be at least $15,000 or more per year and his term should be four or six years. He should be a trained county manager, not some out-of-job political hack.

Let's ask our legislature for enabling legislation in January so we may get started that same month by finding and appointing such a man.

Georgia Will Miss 'Uncle Shack'

The death of venerable William Alsa Shackelford, for 60-odd years editor of the Oglethorpe Echo, removes one of Georgia's best-known citizens from the current scene. He was a remarkable person who did a remarkable job. He made his small weekly publication famous in newspaper offices all over the land. His quick wit and unfailing good humor characterized his paper and brought him nationwide recognition. Georgia and the fourth estate will miss "Uncle Shack." He was of a stamp of which too few remain.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

Teacher Shortage

Editor, Constitution: The critical shortage of teachers in Georgia, outlined by Dr. M. D. Collins in The Constitution on Dec. 5, should be taken to heart by all Georgians who are interested in the social and economic betterment of their state. In spite of the wonderful spirit and co-operation of Gov. Arnall in advancing teacher pay, Georgia still lags behind and until better incentives are provided for entering the profession there is no hope of providing teachers in quality and quantity commensurate with our present and future needs. Education is today a necessity and not a luxury. It is an affront to the common sense and dignity of the people of this state to limit increased educational expenditures to the income which may be derived from a further tax increase on liquor. We must get down to serious consideration of means of increasing the annual flow of people into the profession by tenfold. Dr. Collins' statement deserves a place on the front page of your paper. This statement is not fiction, it is the clanking of a fire-bell in the night and an admonition that we sleep while our most precious human resource—our young people—are deprived of the only means we have for making and keeping men free and equal.

For Rural Schools

Editor, Constitution: I would like to add my voice to those praising Commissioner Marvin Thompson on his action concerning the raising of tax on whisky. This is a definite step forward in aiding the state to provide for the education of its young men and women. I understand that the people who sell whisky are opposed to this raise. However, if each and every citizen in the state could have the opportunity to look in upon the rural schools in Georgia, they could see the definite need for more state funds. Too long have the rural school children been without adequate facilities with which to work. We cannot expect to have a good educational system unless we have the proper funds. The raising of the tax on whisky is indeed an excellent way in which to improve the standing of our Empire State.

"Biggest Business"

Editor, Constitution: We of the school department wish to express our appreciation to The Atlanta Constitution for the article, written by Mr. Herman Hancock, which appeared in your paper on Sunday, Nov. 18.

My sincere thanks to Gov. Ellis Arnall and Commissioner Thompson on this, the latest move to place our state at the top of the national list in providing for its education. HUBERT DYAR JR., Royston, Ga.

Excellent Job

Editor, Constitution: The members of the Atlanta Board of Education read with a great deal of interest the article on the Atlanta public schools in The Atlanta Constitution of Sunday, Nov. 18, 1945. Mr. Hancock did an excellent job of presenting the facts concerning the operation of Atlanta's "most important business," and we wish to thank him and The Constitution staff for such a fine writeup of the efforts in behalf of Atlanta's 60,000 boys and girls.

Let 'Em Yap

Editor, Constitution: If a program is coming in on the radio that we do not like we only have to turn the dial and get something better, so that is just what I do when I do not like Pegler's column—I turn the page back, and look again, (yes, I said again) at Jack Tarver's soul-warming grin, and if that does not change one's trend of thought, I'd like to know what it would take. Let 'em yap—they are not harming any one worse than they are themselves.

MRS. AGNES TERRY, Quitman, Ga.

Let's Call the Legislature in Session

Let's call a special session of the Georgia state legislature. Despite the fact it meets in January to finish out the tag-end of the official session of a year ago, let it meet immediately to act on emergency housing for veterans.

It would cost money. Yes. But special sessions have been held, at costs greater than would be the cost of this one now proposed. And for much less important causes.

There is every reason for speed.

I do not think the people generally realize the tragic, pitiful condition of thousands of persons in Georgia, veterans included. Nor do we realize all the implications of failure to remedy that condition.

It is a national problem. The ultimate solution—enough housing—is years away, at least two years.

The only action that can be taken now is emergency action. Atlanta acts, buying 100 trailers for the more than 1,600 veterans and their families now listed as in desperate need of housing. It is a good-will gesture, and not to be condemned, but it is just a gesture.

Ready-Made Housing

It may be argued that there isn't anything the legislature can do about it. There is plenty it can do.

The government has made available, through the Surplus Property Administration, all federal housing. It is earmarked for veterans. It has authorized federal agencies to turn over to state and local governments all surplus federal housing to rent to veterans.

The order covers permanent and demountable housing and any further buildings that can be converted into housing.

There are, in Georgia, great army camps now deserted or almost so. At many of them there are officers' quarters, warehouses, barracks and other buildings which plainly come under the new order.

Obviously, for example, the local government at Hinesville does not need, and cannot swing, the expense and mechanics of the housing available there.

At Camp Wheeler there are many demountable houses. Macon may need all of them.

There must be surplus federal housing at Benning. There are various Naval base establishments now being declared surplus or already surplus.

The plain facts are that no one in Georgia knows how much housing is available.

Let the legislature meet and set up official, legal means of accepting what housing is available and distributing it according to need. Let this be done after a survey of housing which the government declares state governments may take for veterans' housing.

Let's find out what we have. We have got, in the many federal camps, much housing material.

The state could set aside state property for erecting barracks or portable housing. Let the state appropriate money for the building of water supply system and sewage. We have appropriated on a scale larger than would be required and for much less worthy causes. Local, county and municipal governments could assist. Perhaps we could divert or postpone other plans.

The plans for expanding the Milledgeville plant need study, for example. The trend in other sections is away from great collections of large buildings to smaller institutions devoted to the cure, and return to society, of the various psychiatric groups. There may be reason to study the plan, which we all favor, to do something more for the mentally sick of Georgia.

But let us take some of the new income and spend it on temporary housing for veterans—knowing full well that it is temporary but that it will have to be in use for a year or more. The veterans are worth it.

The housing problem is becoming increasingly tragic; productive of illness, misery and discontent.

I don't think we realize, either, how fast disintegration of personal and community life and soul can be brought about by this lack.

Let's have a special session.

I would like to pass on a suggestion made by a visitor. He wanted to know why it was that our religious and civic organizations could not face the reality of this problem.

"I believe," he said, "that if the churches and civic clubs would devote a Sunday afternoon to a house-to-house canvass that every veteran and his family could be housed. Not, perhaps, in entire comfort, but housed. There must be empty servant's quarters which could, with a little expense, be cleared of the grime of being left empty and conditioned for housing. There must be extra rooms that could be found."

He may be right. None can doubt, or refuse to face the fact, that a nation with 6,000,000 families needing housing, is in real danger of moral and spiritual disintegration.

Action—not words—is what we need. A special session of the legislature—a special city survey will be a starter.

And a start must be made.

RALPH T. JONES

Potential Dynamite In Housing Shortage

From all parts of the country come similar reports on the housing situation. The demand is overwhelming, the supply is practically nonexistent.

Thousands of families can find no place wherein to live, to create one of those American family units, a home, which we have been told, truthfully, constitutes the basic warp and woof of decent life and good citizenship.

We consider the problem, first, in terms of the newly discharged, and wartime married, veteran of the armed services. The youth who married either on the eve of induction into the service, or during brief furlough, the youth whose bride has, perforce, lived during the war years with his parents or in her own old home, or who has lived lonely, in a one-room apartment, furnished room or boarding house.

It seems to me that, considered in the light of human emotions, human demands and human necessities, there is more potential dynamite in the housing scarcity than in any of the many problems we, as a nation, face.

Patchwork. Some communities are trying, to the best of their ability, to do something anything, to bring in a hundred or more of the trailer homes which were used in some sections of population congestion due to war industry.

Other cities have similar, or other, plans. They are good, as far as they go, but at best, only patchwork. They constitute a like repair work on the national roof over our heads which, actually, needs enlargement, extension and, in large areas, complete replacement.

Just what must be done is obvious. More houses must be built. How those houses are to be built is a more difficult problem. One that I can't answer.

Inflation? There is no more discouraging item in the feared coming of inflation than the housing situation.

Because costs of material and of labor have advanced to such a point a decent, desirable home for a young family can't be built to sell at a price within reach of the average income of the average young married man, be he discharged GI or not.

I have talked with builders. First and foremost, of course, is the complaint they can't find the material. They cite strikes for windows and doors. They say there have been so many strikes in that industry such things just can't be had. And you can't build a house without 'em.

They cite scarcity of brick, which they say can't be found by the average home builder. Brick production, they say, is all destined for big industrial plants and commercial buildings, which can afford to pay prices with which the builder of little homes can't compete.

They cite labor costs, which in many lines essential to the builder have tripled.

The upshot is that the house which, before the war, could be bought for, say, $5,000, with a down payment of $500, can't be built and sold at a fair profit for less than $8,000. To make the situation worse, mortgage and loan companies, they argue, will only accept mortgage on approximately the old valuation, leaving it necessary to secure a down payment of $3,000. And more young married men lack that $3,000 than can pay it.

But, going back to the roots, it is futile to discuss all these costs and financial problems. For, on any basis, the houses just don't exist, and the prospects for extensive building are not good.

What to do? All of which spells inflation. For if a house property that, before the war, was worth $5,000 is today worth $8,000, that means eight dollars today are equal only to five prewar dollars. And it means that earnings to meet the higher cost of housing and of living have got to go up.

Which, in turn, means further price increases for the goods made by people who get those increased earnings.

It is a problem. But, if it is not solved, without undue delay, something is going to give. For you can't deny to thousands of young people the basic right to a home of their own without creating a human pressure which, if not eased, spells social explosion.

Stuck!

ROBERT QUILLEN

Earn a Living Wage

Employment offices in different sections report that many men are idle by choice. The jobs they are offered are not the kind they like, and the pay is only slightly more than unemployment compensation.

When the difference between working and loafing is only $5 a week, you can't blame a man for taking time out to look for something better. But this search isn't likely to be successful, for good jobs become increasingly scarce as more veterans are released to compete for them.

The veteran who returns to a job in big industry will get the union wage fixed by contract. But the young veteran, who hadn't finished school or hadn't chosen his life work when war came, will learn that every man's deserved income is determined by the amount of new wealth he is able to produce, or by the marketable value of the service he is able to give.

DeWitt Wallace, owner of the Readers' Digest, takes in many millions of dollars and divides generously with his helpers. Editorial salaries range as high as $100,000, and there are more than 50 assistant editors.

The state tax man, evidently suspecting that Wallace pays high salaries to avoid paying taxes, argues that editors can't possibly be worth so much money. He is talking economic nonsense.

If the skill and knowledge and labor of writers and editors bring in a profit of one million dollars a month, who deserves it if not they? Whether the profit is much or little, it is earned by those whose work prompts people to buy the magazine.

How much is Bing Crosby worth? The answer depends upon how much people will pay to hear him sing.

The young traveling salesman used to prefer a salary instead of a commission, not realizing that his pay, whatever it might be called, had to depend on how much he sold.

The veteran will face the same hard rule. If offered small pay, he may cry indignantly: "Do you call that a living wage?"

The employer may answer justly: "No, I call it a very poor wage. But, even so, I will be gambling that much, for I have no idea how much you can be worth to me. I'll gladly pay you 50 a week, or 500, if you can add that much to our intake, plus a little for me."

So the youngster's first concern is to learn how to be worth a living wage. When he learns how to make a dollar for others, they will give him a place to make one for himself.

Now, Wait a Minute! (1) The leading exponent of its own unlimited national sovereignty is the Soviet Union. From official leaders in the United States and Britain have come proposals ranging all the way from world federation to international controls over atomic energy. On the day that Laski made his speech, Pravda sharply censured all proposals "to revise the UNO by limiting the national sovereignty of the great powers," and in an official broadcast Moscow branded those who propose a world parliament as "Fascists." Ergo, Ernest Bevin, British Labor's foreign minister, and Harold Stassen are "Fascists."

(2) The source of this war is not a "society dominated by free enterprise and a market economy" unless Laski agrees with Molotov's contention on Oct. 31, 1939, during the Russo-German pact, that the aggressors were Britain and France. Nazi Germany was not dominated by businessmen, nor was it "in all its forms the culmination of a society built upon the anarchy of free enterprise."

The worker was subservient to the party-dominated state. The worker was subservient to the employer, the employer to the party, and the means of production were subservient to state aims. The "market economy" was abolished. Foreign trade was state-regulated and production was for "use."

(3) Mr. Laski's description of the dichotomy (highbrow for "division into exclusive spheres") between political and economic life in the western democracies is bunk. The worker has political representation through his vote, and economic representation through his trade union. That this economic representation is powerless is nonsense to anyone reading strike news. It is not only economically powerful but has been politically determinant here for 12 years, as it is at present politically determinant in Great Britain.

Other Ways There are other ways, however, of solving a dichotomy, in which the policeman is the sanction of the first (political) and starvation the threat of the second (economic).

One is the way of the Soviet Union and its satellites in which the executive of a party theocracy carries both the sanction of the policeman and the threat of starvation over everybody—worker, manager, intellectual, and scientist. The dichotomy was similarly resolved in those ancient despots where the tyrant governed politically and personally owned all instruments of production. That abolished any schism. All were slaves and all equal in their slavery.

But Laski has his own dichotomy: Laski speaking as chairman of the British Labor party and speaking on his own.

As chairman of the British Labor party (by the accident of seniority), Laski is fighting Moscow's Communists in all European countries. He is campaigning against Democratic-Socialist mergers with the Communists—a process whereby the minority Communists invariably become the masters of the majority Socialists.

According to whatever logic there is in Laski's argument, only the Soviet Union, in which the dichotomy leading to war has been abolished should have the atomic bomb, and all national sovereignties should be abolished except that of the U. S. S. R. This is certainly not the view of the British Labor party. Laski is its dichotomy. Were it Communist or Russian, it would deal with the schism by banishing Laski to some equivalent of arctic Siberia.

Being democratic, it will tolerate him for the length of his term, after which, if I read the signs aright, he will attempt to split it.

Meanwhile, Laski has done his best to poison relations between Washington and London at the moment when financial relations are being considered by congress. He has handed our own nationalist-imperialists their best ammunition.

JACK TARVER

Will They Wrestle In Union Suits?

In California, professional wrestlers have formed a union.

The time is right, presumably they think, to go to the mat for higher wages.

A wrestler's hours are not overly long. But there's a great deal to be said for time-and-a-half for toe-holds.

Henceforth, one takes it, the mysterious Masked Marvel's identity will have to be known by at least one person—the union agent who testifies that he's in good standing with the brotherhood.

Of course, they could solve the problem by issuing lifetime memberships and letting members have the union label tattooed on their arms.

The grunt, groan and grimace boys are organizing. In union there is strength and goodness knows they need it.

What with the lumber shortage, it's going to be pretty hard, though—enlarging all those rings to make room for the pickets.

DOROTHY THOMPSON

Harold Laski's Double-Talk

It is seldom that one hears, from a supposedly intelligent man, the intellectual double-talk put out by Harold J. Laski, chairman of the British Labor party, in his address to the Nation Associates Dec. 3.

Mr. Laski pled for the end of all secrecy regarding the atomic bomb; he said, "Every implication of this discovery means planned internationalism, and the end of national sovereignty." . . . "War," he said, "is the outcome of the exercise by governments of unlimited sovereignty."

But in order that sovereignty should go, "the interests that sovereignty protects must be recognized as outmoded." The source of national sovereignty, and war, is a "society dominated by businessmen . . . free enterprise and the market economy mean war; socialism and planned economy mean peace . . . Nazism, in all its forms, is the culmination of a society built upon the anarchy of free enterprise."

"The businessmen have split our society in two—the political society and the economic society. They have made the policeman the sanction of the first and starvation the threat of the second." And he deduces, "There is only one country in the world today where this dichotomy has been transcended" (The Soviet Union).

Now, Wait a Minute! (1) The leading exponent of its own unlimited national sovereignty is the Soviet Union. From official leaders in the United States and Britain have come proposals ranging all the way from world federation to international controls over atomic energy. On the day that Laski made his speech, Pravda sharply censured all proposals "to revise the UNO by limiting the national sovereignty of the great powers," and in an official broadcast Moscow branded those who propose a world parliament as "Fascists." Ergo, Ernest Bevin, British Labor's foreign minister, and Harold Stassen are "Fascists."

(2) The source of this war is not a "society dominated by free enterprise and a market economy" unless Laski agrees with Molotov's contention on Oct. 31, 1939, during the Russo-German pact, that the aggressors were Britain and France. Nazi Germany was not dominated by businessmen, nor was it "in all its forms the culmination of a society built upon the anarchy of free enterprise."

The worker was subservient to the party-dominated state. The worker was subservient to the employer, the employer to the party, and the means of production were subservient to state aims. The "market economy" was abolished. Foreign trade was state-regulated and production was for "use."

(3) Mr. Laski's description of the dichotomy (highbrow for "division into exclusive spheres") between political and economic life in the western democracies is bunk. The worker has political representation through his vote, and economic representation through his trade union. That this economic representation is powerless is nonsense to anyone reading strike news. It is not only economically powerful but has been politically determinant here for 12 years, as it is at present politically determinant in Great Britain.

Other Ways There are other ways, however, of solving a dichotomy, in which the policeman is the sanction of the first (political) and starvation the threat of the second (economic).

One is the way of the Soviet Union and its satellites in which the executive of a party theocracy carries both the sanction of the policeman and the threat of starvation over everybody—worker, manager, intellectual, and scientist. The dichotomy was similarly resolved in those ancient despots where the tyrant governed politically and personally owned all instruments of production. That abolished any schism. All were slaves and all equal in their slavery.

But Laski has his own dichotomy: Laski speaking as chairman of the British Labor party and speaking on his own.

As chairman of the British Labor party (by the accident of seniority), Laski is fighting Moscow's Communists in all European countries. He is campaigning against Democratic-Socialist mergers with the Communists—a process whereby the minority Communists invariably become the masters of the majority Socialists.

According to whatever logic there is in Laski's argument, only the Soviet Union, in which the dichotomy leading to war has been abolished should have the atomic bomb, and all national sovereignties should be abolished except that of the U. S. S. R. This is certainly not the view of the British Labor party. Laski is its dichotomy. Were it Communist or Russian, it would deal with the schism by banishing Laski to some equivalent of arctic Siberia.

Being democratic, it will tolerate him for the length of his term, after which, if I read the signs aright, he will attempt to split it.

Meanwhile, Laski has done his best to poison relations between Washington and London at the moment when financial relations are being considered by congress. He has handed our own nationalist-imperialists their best ammunition.

"President Truman nets only $3,000 annually, after paying federal and state tax and White House expenses."—Magazine article excerpt.

By devious means, through changing scenes men move toward their goals. And each man plays, as Shakespeare says, a hundred different roles. Yet if his eye is fixed on high, where shines his guiding star, He will not fail although his trail may lead him wide and far. You cannot tell what dreams may dwell within the human mind—Some folks appear devoid of cheer and to their fates resigned. We think they strive to keep alive, too weak to really fight, And then we learn their spirits burn with some great inner light. It must be true that Truman knew before he was sworn in That what he got would, like as not, be sorry recompense. That what he got would, like as not, be sorry recompense. So he has stressed how all are pressed to meet each high expense. He says this age demands a wage much higher than before, That he would like to see a hike of ten per cent or more. You see how very cleverly he's got around to that . . . The fellow wants his wages raised . . . that's what he's driving at!

Idle Thoughts Of an Idle Farmer

It's raining and it's been raining. Thank goodness the roof is on good and tight. One bad feature, though, you can't hear the music of the rain. Yet, the drip on the cook stove is stopped. It's the best stove we ever saw, too; wood and coal burner on one side and electric units on the other side. The new wood heaters are swell, likewise. Can be filled up with green wood and will simmer all night, if the dampers are turned down.

There's plenty of wood on the Yellow river. That's one advantage of it being inaccessible. Will seem to like the new one-man saw. It was designed for pulpwood cutting but works well on the woodpile. Henry is through picking cotton and will take over the job of splitting and cutting the wood into stove lengths as will haul it in. It is time for Spot, the last Holstein, to freshen. She's always been a troublemaker; we bought her along with eight other Holstein heifers which were shipped into Georgia from Wisconsin. Only three of the nine did well. It is a mistake to bring in cattle from the dairy states without exercising extraordinary care. Georgia farmers bought these dairy heifers at the suggestion of their government and to keep them from going to the butcher. We probably got the culls. Spot arrived with a stubborn skin disease. Would never eat with the other cattle. Now she is about to freshen. Have already had the veterinarian with her and will probably need him again. If she does well, we will keep her for home use. Hardly anything better than milk and brittle biscuits for supper.

KING BOSTICK is doing the milking this winter. Volunteered for the job. Great satisfaction. King. The pups are doing fine. Are six weeks old. Missy is trying to wean them. Very disillusioning to the pups. Furry Pants is ahead in weight and agility. Secondo is the best proportioned and Little Bit has the most style and is the best natured. We will keep one, sell one and give one to a friend for Christmas. Home wouldn't be home without our dogs. Wonder what happened to Charlie, our pet bantam? Disappeared two weeks ago. She always insisted on making her nests in the open. Probably was discovered by a fox or possum. Some varmint got one of our big New Hampshire hens right out of the henhouse along about the time Charlie disappeared. Charlie was a grand person and with amazing intelligence. Susie thinks today might be about right for a pot roast. Right! Maybe with horse-radish sauce? These freezer lock-plants make all the difference. It's daylight now. No sun in sight. Wet. Wet. Wet. No soil is washing away, however. And there's plenty of wood. And plenty to read. And there's the radio. And there's the sofa. Ain't it wonderful to be alive!

REDEEMING LOVE

For what is your life?—James 4:14.

A professor of philosophy, Dr. C. E. M. Joad, has been a skeptic for many years. He has not denied the existence of God, but he has not been able to accept unqualifiedly the goodness of God. Now perception of the unregenerate perversity in the heart of man has caused him to about face. He sees the utter helplessness and hopelessness of man apart from faith in, union with, the God who demonstrated His redeeming love on Calvary. This love is our assurance that man individually, socially can become a new creation in Christ Jesus.

Eternal God, who dost love us with an everlasting love, draw near to vitalize our consciences, to purge our motives. Upon Thy altar we await the fire. May we rise to realize Thy presence along the common ways of toil, pain, and joy.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Rackets In Housing

NEW YORK—The homeless war veteran and millions of other Americans who are camping in miserable crowded quarters in American cities and towns are suffering from the vicious greed of local plumbing and electrical contractors and manufacturers of building supplies and their dealers. It is a corrupt combination intended to rob the builders, the renters and the purchasers of homes which now has become so grasping that new building, after more than five years' of suspension except in emergency war communities, is in pathetic proportion to the tragic need. These racketeers crooks are protected in their racket by town and city ordinances and building codes put through city councils for no beneficial public purpose and with hardly even a pretense of any other purpose than to expose the best class of our citizens—the home-makers and home-owners, to their legalized thievery.

STARTLING as the statement may seem, there are many thousands of decent, public spirited plumbers and plumbing contractors and electricians and electrical contractors in the United States who would be glad to take the people a square deal but can't offer them economical bids because the racketeers have the power to "examine" them in written tests and deny them local licenses on the ground of the "examiners" are the contractors who got in on the ground floor and the ordinances which require "examinations" and local licenses permit them to keep out all competition by deliberately flunking the new applicants.

I HAVE a letter from a woman in a large Texas city presenting a typical example of this robbery.

"My husband," she writes, "was one of the best plumbers in Lincoln, Nebraska. He decided to go into business here. After a long wait, he was 'allowed' to take the 'examination.' It consisted of such questions as these: 'What is air?' 'What is water?' 'What would you do to get soft water?'"

"To the last question he answered, 'I would install a commercial water softener.'"

"He was wrong. The answer was 'dig a cistern and let the rain water run off the roof.'"

"The city inspector is in the Master Plumbers' Association and the union business agent. They all advised my husband to go to work for an existing shop and they would require no license of any kind. Some of the old timers came in under the 'grandfather' clause couldn't pass any examination, and were frank in saying they would fight to keep out a new shop. The license fee is $100, but if you pay a man enough to hook him again because the supply houses have orders not to sell to new men. With the excuse of war shortages they are scolding the customers. Nobody can challenge the rejection of applicants. They make me think of a bunch of pigs in a trough."

HERE IS ANOTHER letter from an important California city with a desperate housing situation: "I am the owner of a small electrical shop trying to get the right to work here. I have been an electrician 20 years. Having opened a shop I can't get the necessary city license. I have taken the local examination several times but always have failed to satisfy the local board of electrical examiners. I am an electrician. The board consists of old-time local electrical contractors. According to the local ordinance these thieves can ask any question and grade the papers as they wish. They have been doing this for 20 years. I have lived in this county 23 years but my record and reputation mean nothing when it comes to getting a master electrician's license, although I have a state license to do electrical contracting anywhere in California. Even the city has issued me a certificate of competency proving that the city believes I know how to use tools and do as the city code says. But the examiners exercise their right to make the examination so hard that nobody can pass."

TO RETURN to the housing crisis and the rackets which are making it worse day by day, however, I would emphasize that the local contractors, greedy and brutal as they are in their ruthless robbery of their neighbors by these crooked monopolies, are neither alone in their racket nor the most contemptible of the rackets involved. The worst are the respectable manufacturers and dealers in building supplies. They have been robbing the people for years in a hidden but arrogant hold-up whereby they add 20 per cent, some more, some a little less, to the price of plumbing articles, electrical supplies, wallpaper and other materials and turn it over to the contractors on the jobs. Because there are such vicious robberies and because the effect now is to deny new homes or even fairly civilized quarters to millions of Americans, I intend to pursue this subject.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 million tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up at night. Frequent uric acid passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's gives happy relief and will help the 15 million of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

DAMON RUNYON

Is Blanchard the Best Ever?

I was sitting in a Broadway gaff the other evening listening to a young man who was babbling about the Army football team as being the greatest ever assembled and about a guy by the name of Blanchard being the greatest footballer that ever wore cleated shoes and I kept nodding my head as if in agreement with him because what could I get by disagreeing?

In the first place, the young guy could holler louder than I can and in the second place, I figured that agreeing with him would cause him to pick up the grunt, or tab, a theory that was presently completely dissipated. And in the third place, I felt his announcements belonged in that vast file of mine that bears the label who-cares?

But after the young man had departed leaving me with the bad news from the waiter, I sat there awhile meditating and I said to myself, Runyon, this situation proves that some unseen power guards the destiny of human beings, even football players. I said this surely demonstrates the mercy of Providence because just suppose those little boys the Army has been playing against this season had been tossed into a stadium with the likes of old Broncho Nagurski?

I SAID, Runyon, you know very well that the old Broncho would have been arrested for cannibalism because he would have eaten those tender little gridiron shoots of Army's opposition alive. I said, the weeping and wailing of bereaved cheering sections as the Broncho munched and crunched would have been pitiful to hear.

But I said, Runyon, better keep such thoughts for yourself because Blanchard and those other Army guys have the football world so overawed by the way they have been trampling the pigskin adolescents that no one never heard of guys like Nagurski and you would only be cried down as a senile old codger.

I said, Runyon, if you are smart you will join in the cheering for Blanchard & Co., as the greatest ever, because a few persons, feeling about Blanchard and Davis as ball carriers and runners, you did not say you thought that against the same material on the teams of the Army's schedule, a long ago lad called Red Grange would have twice circled each and every player on the field en route to his touchdowns, and afterwards run fifty times around the block as additional stimulation to his blood circulation.

And without drawing a long breath. I said it was just as well because the young guy would have thought that when I said the name, and surely he would have thought you were fictionizing had you said there used to be an Injun around entitled Jim Thorpe who would have tucked all the

It was certainly a rash moment when I told my kids they could "host" a party. Not that they were rough little things . . . in fact, we expect the garage ball tomorrow.

The party was run off with almost military precision. At 3 p. m. the first kid arrived . . . at 3:01, the second kid arrived . . . at 3:02, the third kid arrived . . . at 3:03, the cook quit, the dog ran under the house, and the first neighbor started phoning the police.

Then someone suggested musical chairs, and that was the successful. I know the one they hit me over the head with rang like cathedral chiming.

They were polite kids, though, and all said good-bye so nicely. One little boy even reached up and hugged me around the hips. I felt that he was the nicest little fellow there until two hours later when I felt for my wallet.

GALLUP POLL

Three-Fourths For Training

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion
PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 6.—While congress ponders the question of peacetime military training, an unofficial sampling referendum in the east central states—Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and Michigan—shows an overwhelming vote of approval among the people of that area for the one-year training program.

Their approval matches that of voters in the large eastern states. The sounding of public sentiment was done through interviews with a cross-section of voters on the following issue:

"In the future, do you think every able-bodied young man should be required to take military or naval training for one year?"

The vote in the east central states:

	Yes	No	No Op.
Illinois	74%	24%	2%
Ohio	75	22	3
Indiana	69	27	4
Michigan	76	21	3

Earlier this week sentiment in New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Pennsylvania was reported, showing all four states in favor of peacetime military training by majorities ranging from 74 to 79 per cent.

THERE HAS been discussion recently as to how veterans of World War II feel about requiring young men in the future to take military training in peacetime. Veterans interviewed by the institute showed a high vote of approval for the program, as reported Nov. 21.

A survey made by the Selective Service headquarters in New York City among very recently discharged veterans in that area showed a closely similar vote on the issue. Draft boards throughout the city submitted a question on peacetime training to all veterans as they reported back to their local boards.

The vote follows:

"Are you in favor or against a universal military training law which would require all men, upon attaining the age of 18, to enter military training for a period of 12 months?"

	In favor	Against	Undecided
New York City Veterans	22,026	8,676	3,198
All Veterans	177	0.7	1.0

The institute's poll of veterans, covering the whole country, found the following vote in late November:

	In favor	Against	No opinion
All Veterans	86.7%	12.6	0.7
In favor	18%	10%	2%

THOMAS L. STOKES

Truman Proposal A Rebuff To Labor?

WASHINGTON.—It is unwise, even dangerous, to take a current episode and project it against the background of even a small segment of history. Nevertheless, the newspaper headlines that shout "Murray Breaks With President Truman" certainly are significant because, among other things, the public knows right off that it is Philip Murray, CIO president, who is jumping the traces after teaming up so long with the Democratic administration.

This seems to forecast some interesting shifts in those delicate forces of balance that have played so important a part in our peculiar form of democracy, making it fluid, flexible and adaptable.

IN THE LAST FEW YEARS, beginning in the Roosevelt administration, we had the unusual situation of a large part of labor, particularly CIO labor, tying itself up tightly with one political party so that there was no all practical purposes a merger in the last election. This was contrary to the philosophy of old Sam Gompers, AFL boss, who for so many years spoke for what there was of organized labor.

The new and close political relationship came about naturally. The New Deal administration, which took over the salvage of an almost bankrupt economy, recognized that labor must get a more responsible share in government and in the benefits of the industrial age. It struck out boldly, clearly conscious of its aims, to achieve, that in now familiar reforms, including a law to guarantee collective bargaining.

Administration agencies operated with a definite labor leaning on the good theory that this was necessary to restore a balance that had shifted too far the other way. Likewise the administration yielded to the temptation to exploit the close relationship for its own political purposes, also natural.

IT WAS NATURAL, too, that labor identify itself with such an administration because of the avenue offered to strengthen itself and improve its status. It moved in closer and closer under the late President Roosevelt until it became, at least the CIO, an effective political right arm through its political action committee. Some labor leaders looked askance at this intimate relationship.

The Roosevelt administration, on its part, resisted all efforts to change basic labor laws. Now President Truman comes along with a moderate proposal to meet a critical situation which neither labor nor industry could meet, and labor cries, in effect, "traitor, robber." It was the first act even approaching a rebuff to labor in a dozen years.

MR. MURRAY and other labor leaders complain of a conspiracy by industry to use the postwar

CITIZENS' COMMITTEE REPORT TO FULTON COUNTY JURY

Following is the complete text of the report to the Fulton County Grand Jury made by the Citizens' Committee bearing on alleged improprieties and irregularities in the county government:

The Citizens Committee appointed by the July-August, 1945, grand jury and subsequently reappointed by the September-October, 1945, grand jury, is submitting to you a complete report of its findings.

When this committee was appointed, its investigation was delayed for a considerable period because of the uncertainty as to whether it would be allowed compensation sufficient to defray its operating expenses. Assurance that it would receive this compensation was not given until October 1, and it has not had sufficient time to investigate all matters which it believes should be investigated.

The work of the committee could be continued for an indefinite period if it undertook to continue its investigation of county affairs since matters revealing poor management and improper practices are being discovered by the committee even as this final report is being made.

The committee has taken approximately 160,000 words of sworn testimony and in addition has secured numerous affidavits and certified copies of records of the county. In addition, the committee has conducted numerous interviews with individuals, and through all of this it has established facts (many of which are fully set forth in the special reports submitted herewith) which show that the conduct of county affairs during the past few years, as well as subsequent thereto, has cost the taxpayers a very large sum of money, more than it should have cost.

It is shown that a large amount of county funds have been illegally spent on development and improvement of privately owned property since approval of the expenditures by the county commissioners has never been formally given. Little, if any, benefit has accrued to the county as a whole as a result of these expenditures.

The committee wishes to summarize briefly the projects which are reported to you in greater detail in the special reports submitted herewith in order to show some of the many ways in which county funds have been improperly and illegally spent, and in order to show the lax and inefficient manner in which the business of Fulton county is being conducted.

Your committee was appointed to investigate all county affairs, but more particularly the Department of Public Works, and for this reason this department received the major portion of our attention. The Department of Public Works expended approximately one-third (1/3) of every tax dollar collected by Fulton county, and a summary of our findings relative to this department follows:

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT. The Department of Public Works is headed by A. A. Clarke, who holds the title of warden and superintendent of public works. He is supposed to be in charge of the Public Works Department, but the detailed reports indicate he is a department head in name only. A great amount of work done by the Public Works Department has been done under the direction of Carl Mills, who is assistant superintendent, and much of the work is done without the knowledge of Mr. Clarke. The general practice seems to be for Carl Mills to take orders from any of the commissioners, especially chairman of the public works committee, and to carry out these orders even though they would involve expenditure of county funds and work never approved by the board of commissioners.

The practice also exists of county employees engaged in public works carrying out the directives of any commissioner who might appear on the scene of their activities with reference to any sort of work which he might desire to have done. The whole setup in the Public Works Department lends itself to continued "buck passing" and in the final analysis, all of the commissioners and more particularly the chairman of the public works committee, are responsible for the improper conduct of this department.

Specific projects illustrating the above facts follow:

LONDON FERRY DRIVE. This project, consisting of a road extending from Long Island drive to Powers Ferry road, has charged against it expenditures of $14,704.79 which have been made without approval of the board of commissioners. Part of this expenditure covers work done on a right of way, deed to which has never been accepted by the county.

Work involving a cost of $7,340.23 on this project was ordered by Commissioner Barrett, who was then chairman of public works, and a large part of this benefited directly, lots returned for taxes by Mrs. Lucille Hayes, wife of Barrett's law partner. Deed to Mrs. Hayes for these lots has never been recorded nor has a deed been returned to the county transfer of lot to V. T. Fain, who is a brother-in-law to Carl Mills, and who returned the lot for taxation on behalf of Mills. Carl Mills realized almost a cent ($50) profit in a transaction involving one other lot in a period of a little over a year.

H. D. McClure who was a "front" for the real property owners, has never complied with an ordinance requiring the filing of subdivision plats, and he is subject to a penalty of $100 for each lot sold. The solicitor general of Fulton county rescinded institute civil action against McClure to recover in the name of and for the use of Fulton county this penalty which amounts to approximately $100.

ROLLING HILLS SUBDIVISION. A total of $6,029.15 was spent on this property from May through August, 1945. Allen Stewart, owner of the property and formerly a business associate of Commissioner Hailey, stated that he made no request of any commissioner that any work be done on this property, and that it was started voluntarily by Commissioner Hailey as part of a "gentlemen's understanding." There is no record of formal approval of this expenditure by the board of commissioners and the work which was performed was unmistakably done to open up a subdivision to facilitate the sale of lots. This project was given the "green light" by Commissioner Hailey and received voluntary aid from other projects which had been formally approved.

TULL WATERS' PROPERTY. A total of $253.31 was spent in sloping a bank and grading a driveway on the property of Tull Waters, chairman of Fulton county planning commission. While this amount is small, it is indicative of the general practice of county employees to use county funds and convict labor.

MANKIN DRIVE. A total of $1,136.79 was spent on property in the area of Dixie Lakes, part of it being spent on a driveway constructed by Tull Waters, chairman of Fulton county planning commission. While this amount is small, it is indicative of the general practice of county employees to use county funds and convict labor.

CHURCHES AND CEMETERIES. Notwithstanding a statement by Commissioner Hailey in February of this year that the county could not legally perform work on church property, this type of work is still being done. A total of $180,000 has been spent by the county on churches and church cemeteries from 1940 through Aug. 31, 1945, and over $22,000 was spent during the period from Nov. 1, 1944, to Sept. 1, 1945. An outstanding example is the Peachtree Road Methodist church, where the county has spent in excess of $8,403.27 from February, 1943, through July, 1945, and the Friendship church, located in south Fulton, where over $2,800 was spent, excluding cost of the stone used in building this church, which is not shown in the records, but which was supplied by the county.

This large expenditure of public funds is admittedly illegal and violates the cherished and established principles of the separation of church and state and should be immediately discontinued.

CAPITAL CITY CLUB

A request by the officers of Capital City Club to have the county do certain paving at its country club, Brookhaven, was referred to Commissioner Hailey with "power to act." Total cost of the work done was $5,826.57 and Hailey had the club invoice for only $3,029, although the club had offered to pay the cost of the work. The cost to the county was $2,797.57 more than it received from the Capital City Club.

The commissioners are without authority to do work of this nature for private individuals or corporations, even though they are reimbursed in full.

STONEWALL CAMP

Members of the committee made a tour of Stonewall in the area served by Stonewall Camp. Mr. T. H. Perkins, warden of the Camp, accompanied the members. It was found that the county has, for a number of years, been placing "squeeze" on the driveways of private homes, the work being done at the discretion and under the direction of Mr. Perkins. Under oath, Mr. Perkins stated that he could recall the names of any individuals to whom this work was done, but he also stated he knew most of the residents of his community by their first names. He further stated that Mr. Clarke and the county were aware of what he was doing and that nothing was said to him by his superiors relative to this work until about the time this committee was appointed. He stated that at that time he received orders from Commissioner Hailey through Mr. Clarke to discontinue this type of work. No record of the cost of this work to Fulton county has been kept since any work done on property fronting a public road has been charged against that particular road. For this reason, it is impossible to determine how much the county has been spending on this type of work done on privately owned property. The amount must be considerable, however, since this practice has been followed for a number of years.

FULTON COUNTY PAINT SHOP

The county maintains a paint shop at Bellwood Camp for making traffic and other signs required by various departments and for repainting automobiles. For a six-month period ending June 24, 1939, according to a special report made by the county auditors was $44,781.23, or a little less than $7,500 a month. Total mileage and flat allowances paid to county employees during the month of August, 1945, amounts to $10,754.35. Thus it will be seen that the present method of paying county employees either mileage or flat allowance is costing the county approximately $8,000 a year more than did the operation of county-owned automobiles. It should be remembered that the cost of the county-owned cars was subject to much criticism and could have been reduced by requiring the placing of cars in the garage at night and over the weekend.

The county owned and operated 112 passenger cars and station wagons at the time the use of county-owned cars were discontinued. In September of 1945 the county paid mileage and flat allowances on 212 automobiles and owned and maintained 17 for a total of 227, an increase of over 100 per cent. Inasmuch as the total number of county employees in 1939 was 1,057, the total in 1944 was 1,080, there appears to be no reason for this greatly increased expenditure, except the use of car allowance as a substitute for raises to the politically faithful.

GENERAL. The public works department feeds clothes and household items which are used on public works in Fulton county. In 1939 there was a total of 1,120 prisoners in the public works camps as of March 31, and on that date there were 365 camp employees. On March 31, 1944, there were 566 prisoners and 267 camp employees. The ratio of prisoners to camp employees was 3.06 in 1939 and 2.11 in 1944.

Expenditures of the public works department, in round figures, in 1944 amounted to $1,429,000. Of this amount, $1,000,000 was spent for machinery, $23,000 was paid to the city of Atlanta for sewer maintenance and $118,000 paid to the city of Atlanta for paving streets. Of the remaining $319,000, $701,000 or 57% was spent for salaries. The amount shown for machinery expenditures does not include $16,000 spent from a special fund set up from the sale of machinery in 1942.

These figures as shown for the public works department do not include the colored industrial park, health and sanitary department, nor the parks department. This is mentioned since these departments are popularly supposed to be under the public works head.

The cost in these departments have, in the past six years, risen tremendously, and in the parks department salaries have increased from $23,000 in 1939 to $73,000 in 1944. Salaries at the alms house have increased from $8,600 in 1939 to $14,600 in 1944, and salaries at the colored industrial park have increased from $33,000 in 1939 to $47,000 in 1944.

COMMENT

All of the above mentioned projects involved the use of convict labor for work on private property which is in violation of Georgia statutes. The projects reported are indicative of the use of county funds for a favored few to the detriment of the majority of taxpayers of Fulton county, and of the use of county materials and convict labor to carry political favor. Such actions are admittedly as old as our commission form of government and have been tolerated as an established custom. Such actions are reprehensible and should be condemned and no longer tolerated by the citizens of Fulton county.

Another matter which we call to your attention is the general practice of the county in referring matters to the chairman of the Public Works Committee with "power to act" which gives the single commissioner wide discretion in such matters. It is further found that projects which are approved by the commission as a whole are generally approved without any knowledge of what the total cost will be and without giving consideration to the ultimate benefit to be derived by the county.

Much has been said about the bringing of new property values on the Tax Digest thru the opening of property located subdivisions. It would be more complete and detailed survey of the county Tax Digest over a period of years to verify or disprove statements which have been made. The committee did find, however, that the use of Londonberry drive the total taxable value of the individual lots in this subdivision returned for taxation exceeded the value of the land returned for acreage by only $1,000.

In view of the cost to the county of the Public Works department many thousands of dollars can be saved each year by abolishing the convict camps, turning the prisoners back to the state, maintaining a repair and maintenance crew and letting all major projects on a contract basis. Such a method of operating would automatically eliminate the long-standing practice of major improvements and developments on private property.

AUTOMOBILE MILEAGE

In 1939 when the grand jury began an investigation of the use of county-owned automobiles by employees on personal trips the commissioners sold all but a few of the county-owned automobiles. The county required employees who used cars in county business to furnish their own automobile and compensated them for their use on a mileage basis. Cost of operating county-owned automobiles for a six-month period ending June 24, 1939, according to a special report made by the county auditors was $44,781.23, or a little less than $7,500 a month. Total mileage and flat allowances paid to county employees during the month of August, 1945, amounts to $10,754.35. Thus it will be seen that the present method of paying county employees either mileage or flat allowance is costing the county approximately $8,000 a year more than did the operation of county-owned automobiles. It should be remembered that the cost of the county-owned cars was subject to much criticism and could have been reduced by requiring the placing of cars in the garage at night and over the weekend.

The county owned and operated 112 passenger cars and station wagons at the time the use of county-owned cars were discontinued. In September of 1945 the county paid mileage and flat allowances on 212 automobiles and owned and maintained 17 for a total of 227, an increase of over 100 per cent. Inasmuch as the total number of county employees in 1939 was 1,057, the total in 1944 was 1,080, there appears to be no reason for this greatly increased expenditure, except the use of car allowance as a substitute for raises to the politically faithful.

GENERAL. The public works department feeds clothes and household items which are used on public works in Fulton county. In 1939 there was a total of 1,120 prisoners in the public works camps as of March 31, and on that date there were 365 camp employees. On March 31, 1944, there were 566 prisoners and 267 camp employees. The ratio of prisoners to camp employees was 3.06 in 1939 and 2.11 in 1944.

Expenditures of the public works department, in round figures, in 1944 amounted to $1,429,000. Of this amount, $1,000,000 was spent for machinery, $23,000 was paid to the city of Atlanta for sewer maintenance and $118,000 paid to the city of Atlanta for paving streets. Of the remaining $319,000, $701,000 or 57% was spent for salaries. for Fulton county. Mr. Holland told the committee that he made no request that if he wanted to continue to work for Fulton county he had to do what the commissioners told him. He said there is a sign in his office which reads, "The boss may not always be right, but he still the boss."

Certain automobiles have been purchased from the surplus property division of the government without any purchase order being drawn on the county treasurer to cover payment for these automobiles. Holland stated that this was just one of the many instances in which the purchasing department is by-passed by the commissioners.

One requisition covering three new Plymouth automobiles was approved by A. P. Dodd, superintendent of the garage, and Commissioner Barrett as chairman of the public works; a purchase order was issued without the approval of Commissioner Duncan, who was the chairman of the committee on purchases.

This was done probably because Commissioner Barrett was in a hurry to have the order issued. The order was issued on April 14, 1944, and on April 20, 1944, a warrant was drawn on the county treasurer in the amount of $3,248.52 in payment of three automobiles. On the same date the treasurer received $1,093.53 from each of the three commissioners. Commissioner Barrett, County Policeman E. H. Fitzgerald and County Policeman H. H. Green. No approval of this expenditure appears in the minute book of the county commission until April 27, 1944, when the clerk reported that the warrant had been drawn and the treasurer had been reimbursed for the full purchase price. The board ratified the actions of the clerk.

A further investigation of purchases of used automobiles from the surplus property division of the government disclosed that Holland had issued fictitious purchase orders to county employees to enable them to purchase these automobiles, which they would be otherwise unable to secure as individuals.

Automobile license tag for a car purchased in this manner by T. E. Roberts on May 19, 1944, was issued to Commissioner Clarence Duncan on May 24, 1944. Under oath, Roberts stated he had sold this car but he did not recall to whom.

The regulations of the surplus property division of the government do not permit the sale of automobiles, new or used, to individuals. These automobiles can be sold only to municipalities, automobile dealers and ex-service men.

Notwithstanding no fraud has been perpetrated on Fulton county, the use of the county's name for this purpose by the purchase of automobiles by county employees borders on a conspiracy to defraud the U. S. government in that it is causing the surplus property division to enter into a large number of "in violation" of the regulations.

The action of the board of commissioners in ratifying the acts of the clerk of the board relative to the purchase of new cars and automobiles for a commissioner and two county policemen on a bona fide purchase order falls in the same category. The pertinent fact is that neither Mr. Green nor Fitzgerald apparently were qualified to purchase new automobiles under OPA regulations, and it is further found that the price which these individuals paid the county was much below the price that would have been paid to a dealer had they been able to purchase the same cars on proper OPA certificates.

Purchases by Fulton county for automobile and truck tires and tubes during 1943 were checked. During the first six months of 1943 most of the county's tire business went to Gordy Tire Company, although this company was not the low bidder on a number of the items purchased. Commissioner Duncan was employed by Gordy Tire Company until July 12, 1943.

During the last six months of 1943 most of the county's tire business went to Brooks-Shatterly Company, also one of the high bidders. Commissioner Duncan was employed by Brooks-Shatterly Company beginning July 13, 1943. Not only was Brooks-Shatterly Company the high bidder but the prices charged the county for automobile tires exceeded the bid price in almost every instance as shown by the detailed reports submitted herewith.

Holland denied any responsibility for the purchase of tires at a price exceeding the bid price on the ground that the responsibility was with the purchasing department. He transferred to the superintendent of the garage on June 2, 1943, by a resolution of the board of commissioners introduced by Commissioner Duncan. This was a little over a month before Duncan left Gordy Tire Company and became affiliated with Brooks-Shatterly Company.

Another resolution also introduced by Commissioner Duncan on August 2, 1944, which was prior to the severance of his connection with Brooks-Shatterly Company, rescinded the first resolution since it was "in conflict both with the spirit and the letter of the law creating the County Purchasing Department."

All of the facts summarized above indicate that Commissioner Duncan used his position as county commissioner to secure the county tire business at the expense of the taxpayers.

The purchasing agent of Fulton county is merely a figurehead and the Purchasing Department a record-keeping department. While Holland has authority vested in him by law, he is frequently directed to deviate from the law by county commissioners, and is often by-passed.

The practice of the Purchasing Department of Fulton county issuing fictitious orders for automobiles to be purchased by individuals from the Surplus Property Division of the Treasury Department is a highly improper practice and is to be severely criticized.

TAX COLLECTOR'S OFFICE. Notwithstanding the fact that the Fulton county tax digest for the years 1938 through 1943 is $6,000,000 less than that of 1943 is the delinquent tax digest of the city of Atlanta. There is a total of $211,709.10 on the Fulton county delinquent tax digest from 1938 through 1943. This amount does not include any poll taxes for the six-year period.

Lack of adequate clerical help cannot be responsible for this situation since salaries in the tax collector's office have increased from approximately $50,000 in 1939 to $87,000 in 1944. This is a gross increase of 74%. There are 10 employees Mr. Ellis McCalland, local attorney, at a salary of $3,000.00 a year, plus an automobile allowance, and in view of what the committee was able to learn of Mr. McCalland's activities on behalf of the county, his services should be terminated. Work which he is supposed to do should be transferred to some qualified full-time county employee.

There are several employees on the county pay rolls who are members of the bar who can handle the necessary legal work.

The tax collector during the month of January, 1945, waived the tax and interest due on delinquent taxes amounting to $1,889.90. There is no reason for this except perhaps in isolated cases of servitude.

The amount involved is small, and the tax collector or his bonding company should be called upon to pay this amount as well as any other amounts similarly uncollected in other months into the county treasury.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE AND JAIL. Salaries paid to the sheriff and his deputies and office help have increased from $130,000.00 in 1939 to $181,000.00 in 1944, an increase of approximately 40%. The work done by the sheriff's office is directly reflected in receipts credited to this office, and in 1939 approximately $75,000.00 was credited to the county, while in 1942 when $61,000.00 was collected and an increase to $77,000.00 in 1944. There is no reasonable relation between the salaries paid and the amount of work done as reflected in receipts. During the same period automobile expense and transportation allowance for this office increased from $5,700.00 to $10,600.00, or almost a 100% increase.

The cost of operating Fulton county jail increased from $108,000.00 in 1939 to $139,000.00 in 1944. During the same period the total number of prisoners in the jail as of March 31 decreased from 412 to 215. The average cost per prisoner per year increased from $262.06 to $648.08. The overall expenditures increased approximately 30%, and the cost of operations per prisoner increased over 147%.

Expenditures for salaries and groceries, which should bear a direct ratio to the number of prisoners cared for, increased 50% during this same period. The annual report of the jailer made to the board of commissioners is misleading since it does not include salaries paid. Future reports should include this item and reports should be adjusted accordingly in order that a proper comparison can be made. Of the increased cost of $31,000.00 during the six-year period, salaries accounted for $26,000.00.

The practice of feeding deputy sheriffs, county policemen and other county employees without charge, and the further practice of Sheriff Foster and others preparing private barbecues at the jail and using convict labor for serving, contributes somewhat to the high cost of operations and should be discontinued.

CIVIL COURT OF FULTON

The civil court of Fulton county was setup as an inferior court to handle civil cases within certain limits with regards to the amount involved. Whether or not this court serves a useful purpose, the committee is not prepared to say. It does find, however, that the expenses of operating this court have increased from $162,764.73 in 1939 to $167,261.10 in 1944, while the revenue for the same period has decreased from $103,885.82 in 1939 to $53,853.38 in 1944. The overall increase of expenses in operating this court is approximately $4,500.00, while the increase in the item of salaries is $11,500.00.

The duties required of the employees of this court are directly reflected in the fees collected, and if an adequate staff was maintained in 1939, as we believe it was, then this court has considerably more employees now than is required to transact its business.

Previous reports made on the operations of this court reveal that the positions of Marshal and Clerk could be combined with a substantial saving to the county. In numerous trips made to his office by members of the committee, it was found that the employees in the office apparently had very little to do and at no time was Marshal George in his office.

Mr. Hewitt Chambers, clerk of this court, was away from his duties for a period of several months while in the Army, and during the time of his absence the work which he had been doing was done by other employees of the court who had ample time and ability to do the work required. The attitude of Marshal George toward the conduct of county business is well illustrated by his statement to the committee that he did not turn in personal mileage because the county was not paying him enough for the use of his car.

An interesting comparison is made between the civil court of Fulton county and the civil division of the superior court. In the case of the latter, the expense decreased approximately $5,000 during the period from 1939 to 1944, and the over-all cost of the civil division of the superior court in 1944 was approximately 45 per cent less than the cost of operating the civil court of Fulton county.

SALARIES

Expenditure for salaries charged to certain departments have been commented on above. Total salaries paid Fulton county employees in 1944 were $2,547,000, as compared with $2,100,000 in 1939. Net gross receipts for county purposes were $5,010,000 in 1939 and $5,015,000 in 1944. Salaries increased $87,000, while gross receipts increased only $5,000.

There has been reported a move on behalf of county employees not under civil service to obtain a 20 per cent salary increase. The average monthly salary of public works department employees has increased 38.7 per cent from 1941 through 1944. This does not include increases which have been given through the means of automobile allowances. Sufficient time was not available to check average salaries in other departments, but it is reasonable to assume that they have increased accordingly.

COUNTY MANAGER

The fact that the press reports of numerous meetings of the board of county commissioners indicate that they usually develop into a "cat-and-dog fight" and the inefficiency and waste in the administration of Fulton county's affairs is conclusive proof that a full-time executive is badly needed in order to correct many existing evils and practices in nearly all departments of the county.

It is of little importance what title is given a chief executive officer, but it is important that he be president of Fulton county or permanent chairman of county commissioners, so long as he is vested with the same authority that would be given a chief executive officer of any large business institution, since Fulton county certainly can be classed a big business operation.

We know of no large business institution which pays $5,000.00 a year for operations and expenses which is managed by five part-time directors and without an executive head.

About the first thing that a well-qualified chief executive would do when appointed would be to consolidate a number of departments under well-qualified department heads who would be responsible for the operation of their respective departments and report to the chief executive and not be subject to orders from any member of the board of commissioners.

Centralize all accounting in charge of a committee who would also be responsible for all disbursing of county funds and report to the chief executive.

Many of the changes that would be made by a chief executive could be made under our present commission form of government and recommendations of this nature have been made from time to time by the county commissioners of Fulton county during the past 15 years, but they have never seen fit to take action on same.

In a Citizens' Committee report made to the May and June grand jury of 1939 it was pointed out that savings exceeding $500,000 per annum could be effected by changes in methods of bookkeeping and checking closely the gross misapplication of funds for private improvements and paying of excessive salaries. No material changes have been made during the interim and are not likely to be made until a chief executive is placed in charge of county affairs and the board of commissioners devote their time to policy-making only. Therefore, we urge the four members of the Fulton county delegation to the state legislature to take immediate steps to draw a suitable bill providing for a chief executive for Fulton county, with full and ample authority to administer all the affairs of Fulton county.

It will be noted from the above report that the major part of our time was spent investigating the activities of the public works department, and time did not permit our investigating all the departments of the county.

We have been informed by competent legal counsel that many of the offenses uncovered and referred to in our detailed report are indictable.

We are further advised, by legal authority, that court action is justified in instituting suits to recover for the county moneys illegally spent by the commissioners.

The Citizens' Committee recommends that this condensed report be published in a special supplement in both daily papers of Atlanta, as promptly as possible, and just as is required by law that grand jury presentations be published and that the charges be made by members of the committee, it was found that the employees in the office apparently had very little to do and at no time was Marshal George in his office.

Mr. Hewitt Chambers, clerk of this court, was away from his duties for a period of several months while in the Army, and during the time of his absence were compiled during the afternoon and Richardson announced them immediately.

Dawsonville Man Found Dead

Officials of Dawson county will hold an autopsy at Gainesville today to determine the cause of death of Alonzo Evans, 49, of Dawsonville, who was found dead in an automobile near his home Wednesday night. Evans had bruises on his head and Sheriff Glenn Wallace, of Dawson county, suspects foul play.

Major William E. Spence, head of the GBI, said that the sheriff has requested aid in the investigation and the GBI has complied with the request. Evans, who was employed at a sawmill, was, according to the sheriff, "a peaceful, law-abiding citizen." His body is now at a funeral home in Gainesville. He is survived by two daughters, Eula Mae Evans and May Evans.

ATLANTANS AT OAK RIDGE TO SELECT FIRST OF 'VET-HOUSING' TRAILERS

A trio of Atlantans are at Oak Ridge, Tenn., for the purpose of selecting 100 trailers to be brought to Atlanta to relieve the critical housing shortage for returned Atlanta servicemen. James H. Therrell, executive director of the Atlanta Housing Authority; Frank White, technical director of the Housing Authority; and Raymond W. Torres, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission, left yesterday to survey trailers which will be located in Atlanta and to which returned service personnel will get priority.

Council last Monday provided $60,000 in an emergency appropriation after Mayor Hartsfield and Alderman L. O. Moseley and Councilman J. Allen Couch appealed for early action.

HOUSING

4,000 in need of housing facilities. The 100 trailers which will be moved to Atlanta from Oak Ridge, Tenn., under a city council appropriation of $60,000, in an attempt to care for these ex-servicemen will, admittedly, be "only a drop in the bucket."

Atlanta authorities are confronted with a recurring question: Why can't housing units be constructed right away to meet this pressing need, on the same basis that they were provided for war workers in such places as Marietta and Oak Ridge?

The answer, both as regards public and private construction, concerns two shortages—funds and materials.

"We've got the labor and the know-how—but we can't get the materials!"

That's the answer for private construction, according to L. J. Boggs, national director of the Home Builders' Association of the United States. The Atlantans, who also are in the construction business locally, has been invited to attend a Washington (D. C.) conference called by John B. Blandford, national housing administrator, in an attempt to clear obstacles delaying quantity home production.

Shortages of bricks, doors, windows, flooring, nails, plumbing items—in fact, everything except rough framing materials—is the bottleneck holding up Atlanta's private construction, Boggs said.

"I would start a hundred houses in the next two weeks if I could only get materials," Boggs said, citing the fact that eight of his houses now stand waiting for plumbing, 12 others for doors and windows.

Rising costs are considered by Therrell, of the Atlanta Housing Authority, a factor in slowness in development of private construction. The director cited the fact that bids in a recent project disclosed a rise of 76 per cent since 1939.

"The National Housing Authority is authorized by the government to provide housing for veterans—but to date they haven't given us funds to do it with," NHA's Walker said. He pointed out that during the war period only the minimum of housing necessary to provide shelter for incoming war workers was allowed by the War Production Board, and except for private and public housing projects of that nature, few residences were constructed in Atlanta.

DEFENSE AREA UNITS
Surplus housing units exist in Oak Ridge, Warner Robins and other former defense work areas, and these temporary dwellings could be moved to this area for relief of homelessers. However, Walker stated, the cost should—and must—be borne by the federal government. He regards as "essential" present senate appeals for appropriation to "panelize"—cut

Birmingham Air Base Aids Housing

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The National Housing Agency has approved an arrangement under which barracks and houses at the Birmingham Army Air Base will be leased to the city of Birmingham for conversion into 300 family units to be rented to World War II veterans.

Sen. Hill, Democrat, Alabama, said Thursday he had been advised of NHA's approval by Director John B. Blandford.

Under plans outlined to the congressman the city will convert the barracks and houses into family units by installing partitions, plumbing and equipment. Hill said the work could begin "almost immediately."

Plans for the conversion were drafted by the Atlanta office of the Federal Public Housing Authority.

Clarence N. Walker, NHA's regional representative in Atlanta, said that there was "small likelihood" of Atlanta veterans being housed in barracks or other Army installations similar to the Birmingham plan.

"There has been some talk of utilizing Fort McPherson units, but NHA has taken no action on such conversion plans in Georgia," Walker said.

up and transport to other localities—existing surplus housing.

The GI home is another possible solution to the veterans' housing problem which presents difficulties. The booming real estate market makes outright purchase of homes exorbitant for many veterans. State figures supplied by the Veterans Administration indicate that 2,361 Georgia ex-servicemen have tried to float such loans. Of that number, according to officials, final government approval was given to 1,023 applicants, after which 60 veterans withdrew or canceled their home loan guarantees.

LOAN TROUBLES

Even when GI loans are approved for new homes, veterans are finding it hard to get contractors and materials for building their own homes. At least one veteran, who received his guaranty in October, about five weeks after application, is "at a standstill" awaiting materials.

C. B. Sandford, of the Atlanta Federal Savings & Loan Association, himself a World War II veteran, handles GI loans at this institution and reported that within the past year his bank approved 1,000 such loans. The applications were about equally divided between proposed and existing construction. Many loans are turned down, he said, because of too low appraisals or because the veteran is seeking to pay more for his future home "than his income can stand." Many approved loans for new homes are lying dormant in the bank, awaiting construction facilities.

Veterans who wish they had even their Pacific foxholes are not the only victims of Atlanta's snowballing housing shortage. Local service groups' files are bulging with pathetic true-life stories of aged folk and expectant mothers desperate for shelter; of divorce and disease resulting from four families crowded under one inadequate roof.

Atlanta home-seekers and housing experts agree on one point: "It's a situation we've got to do something about—and quick!"

Huge Buying Forecast

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Ted V. Rogers, Washington, D. C., president of the American Trucking Association, Inc., predicted here Thursday the trucking industry would spend approximately two and a half billion dollars in replacing battered and worn-out equipment as soon as possible.

posals and accepted them "as a basis for informal discussion." The white paper said international trade was curtailed by four general factors:

1. Government restrictions such as tariffs, export licenses, import quotas, and exchange controls.

2. Restrictions by private combines and cartels, which divide the world into exclusive markets; stifle competition, keep prices up and production down.

3. Fear of violent and sudden changes in the demand for and supply of certain primary commodities.

4. Wide fluctuations—and the fear of them—in production and employment.

TO LOWER TARIFFS

This government proposed that negotiations for widespread reduction of tariffs and other government-imposed barriers be started even in advance of the international conference.

Use of authority granted to the President to reduce tariffs under the reciprocal trade agreements act, renewed by congress in June, is one of the most important contributions the U. S. can make toward that end, the document said. Secretary of the Treasury Fred M. Vinson said in a separate statement that the talks resulted in a "happy conclusion which embraces many economic advantages for the American businessman, farmer and worker."

MONEY TO BE SPENT HERE

Assistant Secretary of State Will Clayton told a news conference arranged by Sec. Byrnes that indirectly and in due course all of the $3,750,000,000 loan will be spent in the United States.

Even more importantly, Clayton asserted, the U. S. aid "enables Britain to take full partnership with the United States" in a policy of trading with many nations, instead of making agreements with nations separately, or drawing together in a bloc.

Under the specific agreement embodying the $3,750,000,000 loan, Britain agrees to abolish within one year the "dollar pool" maintained by the "sterling area" bloc.

"STERLING AREA"
The sterling area consists of the United Kingdom, India, Australia, New Zealand, Eire, Iceland, Egypt, Iraq, and British colonies and mandates.

These countries have been putting all the American dollars they obtain into a pool, from which they can draw amounts limited by quotas.

Released from their quotas and the pool, each country would be able to spend its dollars immediately in this country, thus providing additional markets.

The new loan agreement made no mention of Britain's World War I debt, part of which is unpaid. It did specify that Britain would use none of the loan to pay off debts owed to other countries.

"He likes to record his guests' Mm-m-m-s and Ahs when he serves Calvert Reserve Manhattans!"

To make a marvelous record as a host, always make your Manhattan like this: Use ¾ sweet vermouth, ¼ Calvert Reserve (nothing less!), dash of bitters. Stir (don't shake) with ice; strain and serve with cherry. How guests mm-m-m and ah over that pre-war quality, that super "soft" flavor! Yes, Calvert Reserve is indeed—"the choicest whiskey you can drink or serve."

Upchurch-Rawlins Wedding Announced

The marriage of Miss Agnes Upchurch, of McDonough, to Randall Rawlins, of Atlanta, was solemnized recently at the Baptist parsonage, McDonough, Rev. Roy C. Matthews officiating.

Only attendant of the bride was her sister, Miss Eileen Upchurch, who wore a deep brown suit with a mustard yellow blouse and brown accessories. Her flowers were yellow rosebuds. Best man was Bud Patterson.

The bride chose a suit of cocoa brown worn with a light blue blouse and hat of blue feathers. Her flowers were Talisman rosebuds, showered with lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Rawlins is the youngest daughter of Mrs. F. G. Upchurch and the late Mr. Upchurch, of McDonough.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Rawlins, of Atlanta.

MISS VIRGINIA HARVEY

Harvey-Johnston Betrothal Told

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gifford Harvey announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Virginia Ruth Harvey, to Lt. Harry Buchanan Johnston Jr., Dental Corps, USNR. The wedding will be an event of December.

The bride-elect's mother is the former Miss Ruth Lucille Emery, daughter of Mrs. George Warren Emery and the late Mr. Emery, of Birmingham, Mich. Her father is the son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Nathan A. Harvey, of Ypsilanti, Mich. Her only sister is Mrs. Hartman Eager.

Miss Harvey attended Wesleyan College in Macon, where she received her A. B. degree. At present she is connected with Junior Achievement of Greater Atlanta.

Lt. Johnston is the only son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Buchanan Johnston Sr. His mother is the former Miss Katherine Hurt Akers, daughter of Mrs. Frank M. Akers and the late Mr. Akers. His paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Edward Johnston of Blacksburg, Va. His sisters are Mrs. Perry Milton McNeill, of Rome, Mrs. James C. Petty, and Mrs. Eugene D. Stockton.

Lt. Johnston received his B. S. degree from Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill., and his D. S. degree from the Southern Dental College. He has served with the Naval Reserve for the past two and a half years, the last 18 months of which have been in the southwest Pacific.

Attaway-Webb

Miss Lorena Attaway, daughter of Mrs. J. H. Attaway, of Stone Mountain, was married recently to Robert E. Webb, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Webb, also of Stone Mountain. Judge E. A. Sexton, grandfather of the groom, officiated.

The bride wore a smart aqua suit with matching hat, and her flowers were sweetheart roses. Mr. and Mrs. Webb will reside in Stone Mountain.

SALLY FORTH Says:

'Out of This World' Decor Planned For Deb Reception

It goes without saying that the combined artistic efforts of Louise (Mrs. Donald) Hastings, Sally (Mrs. Cranes) Hansell, Mabel (Mrs. E. A.) Cronheim, and Nannette (Mrs. Willard) McBurney will produce something that is entirely "out of this world." Such a "celestial" treat is in store for Atlanta society on Dec. 28 when the debutantes give their coming-out party at the Driving Club, for this foursome of super artists in the field of flower arranging has been engaged to do the decorating. The brilliant idea of enlisting their aid originated with Alverne (Mrs. Calvin) Prescott, whom the debs have named as their chairman of decorations.

Each of the foursome has chosen a room at the club as her special project, so to speak. For instance, Louise has taken the living room, opening off the reception room, which she will do in a dainty, feminine manner that seems symbolic of debutantes. The tea table will be arranged before the fireplace, and the decorative scheme will feature a silver motif. Louise has planned a glistening white satin cloth overlaid with pale green net. Tall silver candelabra will adorn either end of the long table, with a dainty garland of baby smilax threading down through the tall white tapers. In the center will be a low silver candelabrum, the base of which will be massed with shell-pink camellias and dainty green ferns.

A tropical note will be developed in the Bamboo room, for which Mabel has chosen a variety of green fruits as decorations. She has ordered from Florida growing branches of green oranges, limes and kumquats with lots of glossy green foliage, which she will arrange with coral anthuriums for an exotic accent. Nannette hasn't completed the details for her table, as yet, but if it bears the McBurney earmark, it is destined to be exquisite. Sally has chosen to decorate the dining room, with its warm yellow walls. The tea table will be pushed close against the wall to insure spaciousness, and the corners of the attractive room will be filled with sprays of pear blossoms, quince and forsythia, arranged artistically. And where will pear and quince blossoms come from in December? Ah, that's the ingenious part of the decorating. Sally is forcing them herself, and you'll like to see what an easy job that is, try it sometimes. "This said that it requires constant watering every two hours day and night until the buds swell and burst into bloom."

Sally has not, as yet, decided on the covering for the table nor exactly the type of candelabra she will use, and while her plans may have to be changed slightly, at the last moment, in case the florists are unable to supply certain flowers which she has in mind, her plans for the centerpiece are mapped out to the "nth" detail.

She will use an epergne of baccarat crystal and bronze dore, which will grace the center of the table. It is to be filled with pastel spring blossoms, ranging from a delicate flesh to the deep rose tones, and including freesias, hyacinths, azaleas and tulips.

The flower scheme, Sally confides, has been selected because, in her opinion, it depicts the essence of spring, so fresh and beautiful, and quite apropos of the season's group of charming young buds.

EMILY ALEXANDER'S GUEST

When Emily Alexander arrives from Randolph-Macon, at Lynchburg, Va., on Dec. 19, she will bring as her guest her roommate, Jacquelin Curtis, of Richmond, Va. Jacquelin will visit Emily at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander, on Winslow drive, until Dec. 23, and the attractive pair will be seen at all the holiday parties planned for the debutante set during those few days.

Jacquelin, the lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Curtis, is a beauty of the Irish type, with dark hair, blue eyes, and a slender, graceful figure. Perhaps you recall seeing her picture in Life Magazine last summer. The photograph was made during "June Week" at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, and featured the Richmond belle dancing with her escort in the famous "ring dance."

Both she and Emily are juniors at Randolph-Macon. Jacquelin belongs to the Kappa Delta sorority, while Emily is a Chi Omega.

Cathedral Holds Bazaar Today

A Christmas bazaar will be held today at St. Philip's cathedral, beginning at 4 o'clock. Interesting gifts of many kinds will be on sale. A turkey supper will be served by the women of the cathedral from 6:30 to 7:30 o'clock. This will be followed by a musicale in charge of Mrs. J. O'H. Sanders, with Mrs. Frances Campbell Hughes, Wilfred Thoroman, Middleton Norris and Mrs. Georgine Reinmiller participating.

Mrs. Willard McBurney, chairman of Christmas decorations for sale at the bazaar, will have rare and fascinating decorations on display, such as molded candles of various sizes and colors, Christmas greens chemically treated for long life, attractive tree ornaments and complete party table arrangements with and without place cards. Orders for these will be taken today.

Miss Schur Weds Joseph G. Goetz

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer L. Schur announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Beverly Jane Schur, to Joseph Gustav Goetz, which took place recently in New York. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Isaac Landman in the home of the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Morton Steinhart Muller, on Park avenue, followed by a breakfast at Sherry's.

Mrs. Muller, as matron of honor, was attired in brown crepe with a hat of pink rosebuds. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The lovely bride wore a moss green dress with accents of sequins. Her hat was of pink tulle and she carried a white satin Bible showered with pink orchids and valley lilies. The best man was Morton Steinhart Muller.

Mr. Goetz and his bride left by plane for a honeymoon and after their return will reside at 110 East 84th street, New York.

Kappa Kappa Gamma To Honor Miss Locke

The Atlanta Alumnae Society of Kappa Kappa Gamma will honor its national scholarship chairman, Miss Miriam Locke, of the University of Alabama faculty, at a "Christmas" tea at the home of Mrs. Frank Alexander, 528 Martina drive, N. E., Saturday from 3 till 5 o'clock.

Following the tea Christmas baskets for the needy will be assembled. Kappas, who are new in Atlanta, and who have not affiliated with the association, are requested to call Mrs. Alexander, Cherokee 7844.

Stephens-Locke

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Kathleen Elizabeth Stephens, daughter of Mrs. A. E. Stephens and the late Mr. Stephens Sr., of Hapeville, to Melvin Arthur Locke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Locke Sr., of Bristol, Pa.

The wedding took place at the parsonage of the Hapeville Methodist church with the Rev. W. C. Budd officiating.

The bride wore a suit of soldier blue, navy accessories, and a cluster of orchids. The couple will reside in Bristol, Pa.

Miss Mary Gipson Weds Lt. Jaep

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Gipson announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Gipson, to Lt. Charles H. Jaep III, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Jaep, of Westmont, N. J., at the home of the Rev. L. E. Smith.

The bride's sister, Miss Evelyn Gipson, as maid of honor, was attired in gray and black, and Mrs. Francine Ford, matron of honor, wore a black sequin dress relieved by a rhinestone clip.

Lt. Jaep was attended by Lt. Lowell Slagle, USN, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The bride's costume was a powder blue suit with black accessories, and her flowers were orchids. A reception was given by the parents of the bride at their home, 361 Park avenue. Mrs. J. L. Brannon presided at the punch bowl.

The couple left for a wedding trip after which they will reside in Pensacola, where the groom is stationed.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6.—(P)—The existence of open controversy between labor and management was seen as a healthful indication Thursday by Gov. Kerr, of Oklahoma, chairman of the Southern Governors' Conference, which convenes here Friday.

"I'd be worried if we weren't having any trouble," the tall Southerner chief executive said in an interview. "I'm not worried as long as we're fussing and negotiating. We're the only people in the world who can do that."

"After all, less than 1 per cent of our workers are out on strike, and the only alternative to some striking is compulsory labor."

Govs. Caldwell, of Florida, and Williams, of South Carolina, blamed management for much of the present difficulty.

Caldwell declared that "management has made all the money it wants to this year," and probably would not be too anxious for settlement until the tax structure is revised after the first of the year.

Gov. Williams expressed the opinion that "neither labor nor management is very anxious to settle. He said he considered labor demands for more pay 'justifiable to some extent,' because 'look how the cost of living has gone up.'"

"And with labor asking for an increase it gave management an excuse to slow down until the end of the year," he added.

Gov. Laney, of Arkansas, said he believed strikes would not be cured until "equal responsibility is placed on the unions as well as the employers." He contended also that strikes were "a natural consequence of such talk and implications" as proposals for 26 weeks of unemployment compensation at $25 per week.

Rebels Slay 30 As Reds Block Relief Troops

TEHRAN, Dec. 6.—(P)—Rebels have killed 30 persons in new attacks in Azerbaijan province, official reports from Tabriz announced Thursday, and Premier Ibrahim Hakimi demanded freedom of movement into the Soviet-occupied area for the Iranian government to "redress the grievances of the people."

Insurrectionist Democrat party members attacked troop billets at Sarab, killing 21 gendarmes and two officers, the reports relayed by the Tabriz radio said.

Six other persons were reported killed near Marand, between Tabriz and the Russian frontier, and the police chief at Tabriz was killed in another clash, the radio said.

The local police chief and president of the local tribunal were slain in the Marand fighting, Tabriz reported.

In Tabriz itself, capital of troubled Azerbaijan province, insurrectionists tried to occupy the military garage, but were prevented by Gov. Bayat, who just recently took the governorship from Tabriz, the broadcast said.

Sugar Sentences Total 44 Years

Prison sentences totaling 44 years and fines amounting to $7,275 were handed to 11 southern sugar dealers for violations of OPA's rationing regulations in November, the Atlanta regional office has announced.

Violations resulting in the fines and sentences included the use of counterfeit stamps and overdrafting on ration bank currency, the agency explained.

Official OPA records show that since June two out of every three dealers given suspension orders by the agency were prohibited from selling sugar for the duration of its rationing.

Omega Postmaster

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The President has sent to the senate the nomination of Cyrus E. Tolbert for postmaster at Omega, Georgia.

Harold Green, of General Electric Company, Cleveland, recognized as an authority on lamp merchandising and sales training, will address the Georgia chapter of the Illuminating Engineering Society at a dinner meeting at the Melock Monday, Dec. 10, in the Ellen Rice Tea Room, it was announced by the society chairman, A. E. Brunner.

An employee of General Electric Company, Green has served as feature editor of the Magazine of Light and as advertising manager of the National Lamp Works. In 1930 he began his work in marketing, and in 1934 he was assigned specifically in the Better Light-Better Sight movement and the Light Conditioning program.

During the war he supervised a lighting department and was actively designed to eliminate bottle necks in war plants.

Green will discuss store lighting in his talk before the Georgia society. A. E. Brunner says that the society's interest extends to all persons. The dinner will cost $1.35 per person.

THE NEW 1946 LINCOLN—Mercury-Lincoln dealers from Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama gathered yesterday in Atlanta to preview the new 1946 Lincoln and Mercury. The new Lincoln will go on display shortly after the first of the year.

Navy Confers Highest Honor On Georgian

Lt. Cmdr. Mark Valentine Montgomery Jr., of Tunnel Hill, Ga., has been decorated with the Navy Cross, the Navy's highest award for gallantry. He received the award from Capt. E. T. Neale, USN, commanding officer of the naval air station here. Cmdr. Valentine is engineering officer of the instrument flight instructors' school. Montgomery was cited for his part as leader of a flight of three patrol bombers in a daring, low-level, twilight attack on a strongly defended enemy airfield on Kyushu, May 3, 1945. The attack was made in the face of heavy fighter and anti-aircraft concentrations. The maneuver was carried out as a defensive measure for the fleet operating off Okinawa. Serving in the Navy since 1939.

OLDEST MAN DIES IN ELBERT COUNTY

ELBERTON, Ga., Dec. 6.—Funeral services for P. W. Cleveland, 93, reported as being the oldest man in Elbert county, were held Thursday in Elmhurst cemetery, the Rev. C. C. Thomas, the Rev. Peter Manning and the Rev. J. C. West officiating. He died Tuesday night in a local hospital after a long illness. Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. A. C. Smith, Elberton, and Mrs. E. C. McConaughy, Atlanta; two sons, G. W. Cleveland and L. O. Cleveland, both of Atlanta.

Cmdr. Montgomery has spent four years overseas. He has operated with patrol bombers in the Atlantic and B-24's in the Pacific. He is a graduate of the University of Tennessee. He owns a farm at Tunnel Hill, near Dalton, Ga., is married and the father of two children.

Lincoln-Mercury Dealers Preview 1946 Line Here

Lincoln-Mercury dealers from Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee gathered here yesterday for a preview showing of the 1946 Mercury and Lincoln. The new Mercury which will go on display sometime in December, has a 118-inch wheelbase, and features a wide variety of exterior and interior changes that make it the most beautiful Mercury ever built. Also, the 1946 Mercury embodies many mechanical improvements that promise to add still further to the excellent performance record of past models.

Robert J. Burke, Ford branch manager in Atlanta, said that the company is planning a better than $2,000,000 expansion, pointing out that the Ford Hapeville plant will be well under way by March of next year.

Burke also said that tentative plans were to sell 200,000 Mercurys during the first postwar year.

The Mercurys will have two different sized wheel bases and two types of motors in order to cover the medium and low medium priced fields.

The new Lincoln cars will be shown to the public shortly after the first of the year. Burke said the 1946 Lincoln truly lives up to the Lincoln tradition, "Nothing could be finer." The new car retains the graceful lines first introduced to the quality field by Lincoln, but a number of changes gives it increased luxury and comfort.

OHIO GOVERNOR LAYS OWN PLANS TO PRACTICE WHAT HE IS PREACHING

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche intends to practice what he preaches in connection with Ohio's housing shortage. The Governor recently appealed to Ohioans to rent spare rooms to war veterans to help alleviate the state's housing situation. And Wednesday he asked the Ohio attorney general's advice on whether it was permissible to rent out part of the state-owned governor's mansion, a 27-room, three-story edifice.

Atlanta's Mrs. Wagar Takes Bridge Honors

Mrs. Wilkinson Wagar, of Atlanta, and John R. Crawford, of Philadelphia, won the contract bridge in mixed pairs national championship yesterday at the 18th annual winter tournament of the American Contract Bridge League. The tournament was held in Philadelphia. Mrs. Wagar also was a member of the winning women's contract bridge team for her second consecutive year. Other members of the team were Mrs. E. G. Young, Bywood, Pa.; Mrs. J. E. Polline, of Richmond, Va., and Mrs. Helen Sobel, of New York.

Former Atlantan Cited

A commendation ribbon and citation have been awarded to Commodore Robert H. Haggart, USN, former Atlantan, who was executive officer of the naval ROTC at Georgia Tech from 1936-39. The citation, awarded by Adm. Nimitz, praised Haggart for meritorious achievement as commanding officer of a fire support battleship during the assault and capture of Eniwetok Atoll, Marshall Islands, in February, 1944.

Hailey Plays Asher Report As Based Upon Half-Truths

County Commissioner I. Gloor Hailey last night bitterly accused the report of a citizens' committee involving him in alleged irregularities in the administration of county affairs. He attributed the whole report, issued Tuesday as a special presentation of the Fulton county grand jury, to James L. Asher, investigator for the committee, and made a scathing personal attack on the investigator.

Tull C. Waters, of the Fulton county planning commission, alleged in the report to have benefited to the extent of $235 in public works, also made a scathing attack on Asher and invited the public to visit his home Sunday to investigate the truth of the charge. Ellis McClelland, whose work as special attorney for the collection of delinquent taxes was criticized in the report, also issued a statement showing that he had collected on commission more than $10,000 in taxes which he says would have been lost to the county through operation of the statute of limitations.

HAILEY SPEAKS

"I certainly am thankful that this entire matter," said Hailey, "will have to be submitted to the grand jury, which will find upon investigation that Asher's report is based upon half truths and that he cannot substantiate a single charge that I have illegally expended any county moneys. The records of the Fulton county commission will verify my statement that my public acts have been authorized in every instance by the unanimous vote of the Fulton county commission."

"The tactics used by James L. Asher makes me wonder whether he thinks we are living in America where we enjoy the privileges guaranteed by the bill of rights or in Nazi Germany where the Gestapo could try, condemn and convict people without giving them the right to face their accuser. Asher knows that on repeated occasions I requested the privilege of appearing before his citizens' committee with reference to any matters pertaining to the public works committee. Asher assured me that the special presentation of the grand jury authorizing the committee and requiring it to confer with the county commissioners in its investigation would be carried out."

"PRIVILEGE DENIED" Hailey said that such privilege was accorded him.

"To the contrary," he continued, "the first I knew of the report was when I saw glaring headlines to the effect that I had been accused by Asher of illegal expenditures and not even granted the consideration due any citizen, namely to have a hearing before such public accusation. I am confident, however, that the good people of Fulton county, in their fair play and will not be a party to condemning him and smearing the character of their public servants without a hearing and based upon the accusations made by James L. Asher. It is a very serious matter when a man and his family are subjected to embarrassment by having newspaper headlines in glaring terms state that he is accused of conduct in office when he has never been given an opportunity to present the facts."

Hailey then urged the present grand jury to investigate the report.

WOULD FACE ASHER

"I will appreciate," he said, "the opportunity of facing Sherlock Holmes Asher and his report before the grand jury, which privilege I am sure will be granted to each commissioner."

"With reference to Rolling Hills Subdivision—Asher knows that this subdivision is identical in nature with the dozens of other projects which have been completed

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—Before 12:42 noon is more favorable for following routine. At this time give attention to your health. The afternoon and evening hours are more favorable for mechanical matters, consulting surgeons or dentists, endeavoring to obtain the good will of people who are haughty, proud and officious.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—During the entire day until 4:30 p. m. favors relaxation. You are apt to run into friction, lack of co-operation, and people are likely to be nervous, in a hurry, in fact a bundle of nerves. Try to find some point on which you can agree with people and guard against accidents. Conditions change surprisingly for the better after 4:30 p. m.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—Sudden unforeseen changes are apt to occur today, resulting in separations or changes that were not contemplated. This is not an auspicious time to make rash or hasty decisions. The influences tend toward high nervous tension, impatience and irritability and it will be necessary to use much calmness to avoid friction.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—It will be more favorable to wait until 9:25 a. m. has passed to ask favors, for the influences operating previous to that time has a tendency to bring broken promises. Be sure you hold the right mental attitude in dealing with those thought of as supporters.

July 23-Aug. 22 (LEO)—Before 5:30 a. m. and after 7:47 p. m. no chances should be taken that can be avoided. If in traveling and avoid discussions. Between 5:30 a. m. and 7:47 p. m. favors general business interests, and if you will act quickly, you can promote stable plans satisfactorily.

Aug. 23-Sept. 22 (VIRGO)—Plan your entire day. Vagueness and confusion, or dealing with people who are undecided, will not bring you profit before 8:44 a. m. Between 8:44 a. m. and 6:08 p. m. is a favorable period for seeking information and assistance of professional people, and for obtaining your desires in a harmonious way.

Sept. 23-Oct. 22 (LIBRA)—During the entire day and until 7:35 p. m. favors a progressive spirit in legal and industrial works, finances and legal affairs, but suggests caution in works around chemicals and drugs. After 7:35 p. m. your emotions and feelings should be thoroughly controlled.

Oct. 23-Nov. 21 (SCORPIO)—It will be wise to keep an eye on money affairs today, for the tendency is toward extravagance and misapplication. The evening hours after 9:14 p. m. suggest unusual change in unexpected situations.

Nov. 22-Dec. 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—While today is not auspicious for the beginning of new affairs, especially if they involve real estate transactions, and people who are sober-minded and planning for future activities.

Dec. 22-Jan. 19 (CAPRICORN)—New beginnings during the entire day may encounter limitations, and this is not an auspicious time for undertaking affairs that you wish to materialize quickly. Postpone dealings of a conservative nature, or those things that will make your future more secure and substantial.

Jan. 20-Feb. 18 (AQUARIUS)—Work started today may lead to future business and success. Work at home, social affairs, in business, in art, should be very gratifying. A most suspicious day to deal with unusual people and from out-of-the-ordinary sources.

Feb. 19-March 20 (PISCES)—The entire day is one when you may take your responsibilities too seriously and when it is not favorable for you to assume new obligations.

NO PAY HIKE, NO MOLARS!

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Five hundred dentists were on an unofficial strike in Surrey, Sussex, Kent and Hampshire Thursday, refusing to supply false teeth to persons with health insurance until the fees are raised to $42 from the present rate of $25.50.

The dentists have agreed to give emergency treatment to former soldiers and returned prisoners of war pending a decision by the ministry of health.

to visit and see for themselves there is no 40-foot drive paved or unpaved on my property.

"I will also have a photostatic copy of a deed from me to the county to present showing that at the same time some years ago when all other residents of Brown's Mill road gave land for the widening and straightening of this road, I gave a 10-foot strip along the frontage of my land."

"I will also show that the sloping of the bank at the intersection of Brown's Mill road with Cleveland road was done after Feb. 28, 1945, when this work was unanimously authorized."

"I will also show that these so-called citizens have never talked to me to get at the truth. Personally, I am convinced that this committee, like so many other groups who have had a taste of public power with none of the responsibility toward the people or an individual's honor, were not cautious in their search for truth."

"Their presentations as a whole indicate power has been applied by special interests who will wreck democratic government if they can gain control through one man. Asher's one-man rule is proof enough that one-man government, too, would be a failure."

The full report of the citizens' committee is published in the grand jury presentations printed on Page 14 of today's Constitution.

100 Attend Youth Parley At Capitol Homes Center

More than 100 teenagers from Capitol Homes section attended a hillbilly party held Nov. 30 in the Capitol Homes Youth Center.

Boys and girls dressed in blue jeans and plaid shirts, old gray bonnets, calico dresses and high-topped shoes, folk-danced the greater part of the evening away to the music of a string orchestra from the Tenants' Association in the auditorium, which was decorated with cornstalks and pine branches.

The Capitol Homes teen-age center is the latest recently organized of Atlanta youth centers. It is sponsored and chaperoned by the Tenants' Association of Capitol Homes and the Atlanta Y. M. C. A.

Fresh Pork More Flavorful If Cooked Long and Slowly

By SALLY SAVER

It's been missing a long, long time, now it's back—pork. Cured pork products like ham and bacon still are not in abundant supply, but pork loins, pork chops and fresh pork hams have come back in rather good supply within the past several weeks. For Sunday dinner perhaps you'd like to serve a roast loin of pork and have not only an excellent meal, but the enthusiastic thanks of the family for a tasty, rich meat they haven't enjoyed for a long while. In case you've forgotten how to produce the best flavored pork roast, follow these sure-fire directions:

ROASTING PORK

1. Rub roast all over with salt and pepper, (mixed with flour, if desired). Flour is not necessary, but it makes a richer brown and helps thicken the gravy.

2. Place roast in shallow roasting pan, fat side up; place on a rack if available.

3. Without adding water or liquid of any kind, place roast in 350-degree oven. Do not cover pan. 4. Calculate cooking time, allowing 30 to 35 minutes to the pound; 35 for smaller roast, 30 for large.

It is not necessary to baste a roast of fresh pork while it is cooking; the fat bastes the lean meat as it cooks. The secret of roasting meat in dry heat is to maintain an even, low heat throughout the cooking time. Cook pork until thoroughly done, but do not overcook.

Try this menu for Sunday dinner:

ELIZABETH WOODWARD SAYS:

Don't Let Your Sister Steal Your Boy Friend

If you want to borrow a quarter, or you need help in shortening a hem, a sister's handy. A pal, almost your age and size, with a bank roll. You probably share secrets and lipsticks, do each other's hair and play duets. Life with your sister is scattered only with occasional spats until the day she moves in on your man.

You've always figured that your boy friend was your personal property. He picked you out of all the girls he knew. . . he liked you best. And though the outside competition for his attention is still pretty strong, you can handle it. But when war's declared in your own camp, it's mutiny.

TOUGH AND TENDER TACTICS

You could take to meeting your boy friend down on the corner so your sister wouldn't show on your date. You could choose a dark corner in the movie where she couldn't find you. And gently steer your man away from the drugstore or the canteen where your sister hangs out. You can try to keep them out of each other's way. But the strain will be terrific!

Or you can tackle your sister. And tell her to keep hands off. This particular man happens to be yours. There are lots of other boys around for her to snare. Read her the riot act. Threaten her with blackmail, unless she stops flirting with your boy friend. If you scare her enough maybe she'll stay away from the guy. But I doubt it. It will all probably put her on her mettle to land him in spite of you.

No, handling your sister should be subtle. Keep on being best pals. But don't share any secrets that involve that man. Change the subject when she tries to talk about him and don't let her see that she bothers you. If you show the teeniest jealousy, she'll think she's making headway. And nothing will cool her off quicker than getting no rise out of you.

Make each date with you a special event. Think up new and exciting things to do. After all, your guy doesn't date you so that he can see your sister. If he went for her type, he wouldn't have ever bothered with yours. No guy wastes his time on a gal if he likes another one better. So don't fret about your sister's being competition. Keep your guy's eyes on you. . . then he won't even see her.

KEEP HIS EYES ON YOU

Make each date with you a special event. Think up new and exciting things to do. After all, your guy doesn't date you so that he can see your sister. If he went for her type, he wouldn't have ever bothered with yours. No guy wastes his time on a gal if he likes another one better. So don't fret about your sister's being competition. Keep your guy's eyes on you. . . then he won't even see her.

CAULIFLOWER

Cook cauliflower quickly in boiling salted water. Cook head whole or break into clusters. Clusters need to be boiled only about 10 minutes, whole heads 20 to 25 minutes. Cook until just tender, and lift immediately to heated platter. Melt 1-2 cup butter or margarine in heavy skillet, add 5 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon minced chives or green onion and salt and pepper to taste. Saute crumbs until well browned and sprinkle over cooked cauliflower. Serve at once.

CANDIED APPLES

3 or 4 large apples

Red cinnamon candies for coloring

1 cup water

1 cup sugar

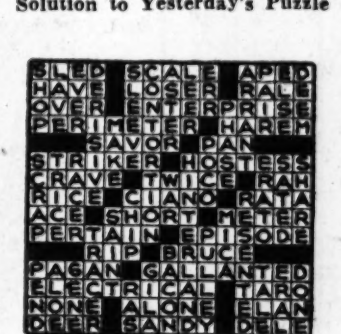

Combine sugar and water, add cinnamon candies to make syrup a pretty red, and boil 10 minutes.

Peel and core apples and drop into syrup. Cook gently until tender, about 20 minutes.

Veto USES Bill, Labor's Request

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The twelfth National Labor Conference, by an overwhelming vote, Thursday adopted a resolution urging President Truman to veto legislation which would return the U. S. Employment offices to state control.

The vote was 78 to 8. The bill to return the employment service to the states within 100 days is currently with a senate-house conference committee, for adjustment of differences between the two chambers, both of which have voted for such return.

"This Love of Ours," Universal's first venture into the realm of real drama since Maria Montez first appeared under its auspices draped in a sarong, appeared at the Fox theater yesterday. It's a two-handerchief job which rates three bells on The Constitution's movie meter.

Its makers have cast this photoplay with a capable lot of players, including Merle Oberon, who joined Universal's ranks about six months ago; a new male love-maker, Charles Korvin; Claude Rains, Carl Esmond, and a youngster, Sue England, who has great possibilities.

Miss Oberon and Korvin—he's a handsome six-footer, with greying temples and a deep dimple in his chin—fit neatly into the script's fast-moving emotional complexities. She's the jilted wife of a noted French doctor (Korvin) who gets the "gate" when he discovers that she's spending her afternoons in the company of another man.

It later develops that the guy with whom she was suspected of carrying on an affair is a blind music student she was aiding. But, to create a story, this revelation does not come out until the greater part of her life has been spent in seclusion and she has been deprived of her young daughter she worshipped so much.

With this theme, Universal has spun a suspenseful yarn which works, with the handkerchiefs coming out en masse when "The End" spells out on the screen. The climax is a jolting one, keyed to the taste of the female patron of the cinema. Despite its warmth and uniqueness, "This Love of Ours" is apt to prove a bit trying at times for the male aisle sitters, who will have a hard time convincing the "little woman" that this is not a grand picture.

To embellish the program, City Manager Tommy Read has chosen a select list of short subjects, including a Popular Science subject and a Puppetoon entitled "Jasper and the Bean Stalk." Some interesting action scenes of the Nazi war trials and a reconverted B-29 in flight are incorporated in the week's newsreel.

Close Advisors To Emperor On 'Crimes' List

TOKYO, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The Allied hunt for war criminal suspects led Thursday to the Emperor's very doorstep with orders for the arrest of his most trusted advisors—Prince Fumimaro Kono and Marquis Koichi Kido.

Kono, three times premier, member of the royal family and vice premier of the surrender cabinet, had been writing a new Japanese constitution and preening himself for a re-entry into politics.

Kido, confidant of the Emperor throughout the war, was keeper of the privy seal until that position recently was abolished. Gen. MacArthur also ordered the arrest of seven others, reaching into Japan's highest military and civilian circles just as he did Sunday when he posted a list of 59 wanted Japanese.

The impact of this mounting toll of Japan's suspected war makers was falling heavily upon the cabinet of Premier Kijuro Shidehara, threatening its life.

Shidehara, appearing before the diet, said his government was in no position to criticize the Allied orders, nor could he say who might be named next.

ARNALL ASKS $20,000 BE SPENT ON DRINK-MORE-MILK CAMPAIGN

Although a milk shortage at the present time has been reported, Gov. Arnall has announced he will ask the Georgia Budget Commission to allow the state milk control board to spend their $20,000 surplus remaining from 1944 operations on a "drink more milk" campaign.

Meeting yesterday with the milk board for the first time since that body was organized, the Governor told the members he was confident the expenditure will be approved.

He pointed out that a "drink more milk" campaign might encourage Georgia farmers to produce more milk.

He also urged the board to seek a continuation of the seven and a half cent per gallon subsidy now being paid the milk producers by the government.

Chiang's Troops Wait Red Okay To Take Mukden

CHUNGKING, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Chinese Nationalist columns were idling 25 miles from Mukden Thursday awaiting Russian permission to enter that greatest city in all Manchuria, a field dispatch reported.

The Russians were in Mukden while Nationalist negotiators were arranging for the entry of their troops in conversations with Soviet Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky at Changchun, the capital to the north.

While these conversations were reported "progressing smoothly," a dispatch to the New Szechwan Daily alleged Chinese Communists were poised to enter the city of Harbin, 300 miles north of Mukden.

Chinese Communists in their headquarters at Yenan were quoted by Associated Press Correspondent John Roderick as saying the question of peace or war hung on Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's acceptance of a plan for a democratic coalition government. They asserted that any idea that Chiang was ready to give in on that issue or had even offered to take Communists into the government at once was false.

Roderick said Yenan believed that Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley's mission as United States ambassador failed because he was unable to convince Chiang of the need for a broad coalition government.

Communist delegates are expected here shortly from Yenan to resume the peace talks.

Young Rickey Chilled COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 6.—Branch Rickey Jr., who recently made a statement to the effect that southern ball players soon might be going back to the mills, is getting quite a chill from the representatives of the many baseball leagues here from Dixie.

It may be recalled that young Rickey, upon the signing by Montreal, of Jackie Robinson, that "I realize the possible results of this. If any ball players decide to leave a club because of the presence of a Negro they will be back after a year or two in the mills."

Southern baseball people had no objections about the signing of Robinson, who was an All-America back for University of California, at Los Angeles, the school that Georgia racked up in the Rose Bowl, 9 to 0. The objection was to the way Rickey made his statement. And he wasn't smiling when he said it.

However, we understand that Branch Sr., also took hearty objection to the statement. "Why did you have to say a thing like that?" the old man demanded. "You handled the rest of the situation fine."

Maurice Bloch, from Selma, Ala., president of the Selma Cloverleafs and Southeastern League front man for the Pittsburgh Pirates, had an interesting observation to make.

"They erected a monument to the boll weevil in Enterprise, Ala.," Bloch pointed out. "Now I suggest that Father Dixie be instructed to take up funds and erect a monument to the Rickeys in Harlem."

As we say, southern representatives have no real concern in the matter of Montreal having signed Robinson, who was a good college athlete. But they can't take any inference by Rickey that boys like Cecil Travis, Johnny Rucker, Larry Appling, Wally Moses, Johnny Mize, and so on, are mill hands. Not that there is anything wrong with being a mill hand. It's just that the statement apparently was an effort to be insulting.

We can't understand why young Rickey tries to be difficult when, with a little more effort, he might be impossible.

Texas Goes Double-A The good old Texas League took a surprising stand today. Pres. Alvin Gardner led the fight to establish the league as a Double-A and thus stay on the same level with the Southern League. The Dixie Series will be revived next season.

There was quite an argument among Texas League owners as to the advisability of raising their classification from A-1 to Double-A, but when the Southern League, refusing to yield to pressure from other Double-A clubs and the Texas League, stood pat, there was nothing else the Texas could do but go Double-A, the Sallee League, of course, has gone A. There won't be too many small minor league left.

The International League and American Association stepped up a notch ahead of the Southern and Texas Leagues by going Triple-A, which means they're only a step behind the majors. The Pacific Coast League is clamoring to be a third major league. They may be approved here and get final approval at the major league meeting in Chicago next week.

The Pacific Coast tomorrow will ask permission to resign from the National Association of Baseball, paving the way for the major league classification.

Pants Rowland, president of the Coast League, has been leading the cheers for this major league, arguing that the territory, the interest and the wealth of the Pacific coast baseball towns is not exceeded anywhere.

We sincerely hope that the Coast League becomes major league, for it will mean that Jo Jo White, of Sacramento, will realize his ambition to be a major league player. He is only a year away from it, having served nine in the National and American Leagues.

It was recalled here that White, who led the Coast League batting last season, having enjoyed one of his best years in baseball, always could hit one American League pitcher as if he owned him. The boy is Hank Borowy, now pitching for the Sacramento Cubs. White could drag bunts, hit line drives and work Borowy for bases on balls.

Jo Jo likes Sacramento and is spending the winter there with his family.

Bob Burke, southeastern division manager of the Ford Motor Company, Atlanta, will be highly interested in seeing the Coast League go major league so that White can, at long last, become a 10-year major leaguer.

Sports in Short This and Data Dept.: HERB ARMSTRONG, who retired the Tech-Navy football game when EDDIE PROKOP was playing for the Jackets, is a member of the New York Giants organization. Armstrong thumps BOBBY DODD did a great job with the T, much better than Navy did, and added that it was remarkable DODD could present a team as successful with only a bunch of scab backs. "The Navy game at Baltimore was a pip. Tech might easily have won," Armstrong declared.

Pensacola's MR. ALLEN, a pulp mill owner, is going to operate two teams in the Florida State League, St. Augustine and Pensacola, next season. BILL McKEE, ex-Little Rock player, will manage Pensacola. It is rumored that BILL STEINKECKE will manage St. Augustine. An old friend, EARL BUSSEY, is business manager of the St. Augustine team and is here representing the Saints. The ROYD boys, CROWTHER and JIMMY, recalled with pleasure today that the minor league convention at Jacksonville, which set an all-time record for attendance, attracted considerably more delegates than descended on Columbus, Ohio.

There were 1,200 delegates at Jacksonville, from the majors and minors. Eight hundred and fifty three registered here. Incidentally, it may be a long time before Ohio State and any southern schools ever meet in football, for the reason that the Big Ten has a rule forbidding its members to play any schools that openly offer assistance to athletes. We paid the school a visit today, being escorted by WILBUT E. SNYPP, director of athletic publicity, and ABE FEINBLUM, of Rochester, N. Y., who represents the Champion Knitwear Company. The enrollment at Ohio State is now 13,000, about half women, so it may be just as well there's a rule against a Tech or Georgia versus Ohio State football game. BOB WILBY, of Atlanta, will be interested to know that, in the interest of better serving the fans, no sit behind the goal posts. Ohio State is planning to put yard markers facing the goal posts in order that the followers may keep up with the ball at all times. Commissioner HAPPY CHANDLER has been stripped of most of his powers. But he still has seven years to go at a salary of $50,000 a year. WALLY BUTTS, the little round man, has many friends in baseball, and they are happy for him that his Georgia Bulldogs have been recognized by the Houston Oil Bowl. Dick Freeman, sports editor of the Houston Chronicle, is here and thinks the Georgia-Tulsa game will be as interesting as any bowl game, ranking right along with Alabama and University of Southern California, of the Rose Bowl. TRIPPI will give the Texans a real show on New Year's Day.

Flames Win, 45-30 night in a City League game on the YMCA court. Chaffee, Shaffer and Towell were the leading scorers with 12 points.

The Atlanta Ordnance Depot Flames defeated the Georgia Tech Blue Streaks, 45-30, Wednesday.

Minor Leagues Vote To Put Curb On Chandler's Powers Over Them

Czar's Plea Is Rejected By Meeting

By HAROLD HARRISON
COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 6.—(P)—The major league traders finally accomplished a player deal today, but the minor leagues supplied the fireworks by curbing the baseball commissioner's power over them only a few minutes after the commissioner himself pleaded with them against legislation "offensive and obnoxious" to him personally.

The minor leagues listened to a short speech by Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler, who approached mention of his row with some baseball men by pointing out he "did not see the job" but intends to hold it for seven years. Then he pointed to "resolutions before you that are offensive and obnoxious to me personally."

The minors then quickly approved, 21 to 3, an amendment to baseball law asking away the commissioner's authority to declare any of their legislation "detrimental to baseball." This was the rule which gave the late Commissioner K. M. Landis most of his power. The convention went on to refuse approval of proposed legislation which would have wiped from the books minor league rules governing bonuses — which Chandler had ruled are both "unfair and illegal." These rules stipulate that no player below Class AA can receive a bonus for signing contracts and no manager can receive a bonus or any part of the purchase or draft price of a player.

Minor league head, Judge W. G. Bramham, later said any bonus contract will be approved by him from Class AAA down to D. He declined to amplify his statement.

The convention approved the advance of the International League, American Association and Pacific Coast League to new AAA classification. Tabled until tomorrow was a vote on the bid of the Pacific Coast League to step up into the major leagues.

The lone big-league player deal was the sale of right-hand fast baller, Johnny Humphries, by the Chicago White Sox to the Philadelphia Phillies, but of equal importance was the New York Yankees' roster-clearing sale of Outfielder Hershel Martin to the Oakland Pacific Coast League club.

VANDERBILT NOT TO COMPETE IN ANY BATTLES FOR BOWL BIDS

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 6.—(P)—Chancellor O. C. Carmichael says Vanderbilt University does not expect to enter football bowl competition at the expense of lowering its standards but that the institution does expect to participate wholeheartedly in Southeastern conference sports.

Speaking at the annual football banquet last night the chancellor praised this year's team, which entered Southeastern conference competition after the school had avoided conference play for two years.

He said that the spirit of the players merited admiration, in spite of their limited number of victories.

"Vanderbilt does not expect to enter the race for Rose Bowl competition," Carmichael said. "nor does it expect to lower its standards in order to produce winning teams, but it does intend to have strong teams that will provide keen and wholesome competition in the Southeastern conference."

"It has this year provided grants-in-aid and expects to continue such grants until a better system can be devised, but it does not propose to make them to men who are not capable of doing real college work. . . . It recognizes that from the standpoint of producing winning teams it will be handicapped by its standards of admission and of scholarship, but that has always been true."

Cracker Hurling Staff To Be Strong in 1946

By JACK TROY
Constitution Sports Editor
COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 6.—According to the valued opinion of Claude Dietrich, chief scout, the 1946 Atlanta Crackers will have the best pitching staff in the Southern League, with Bill Ayers due for release from the Army soon and Emil Lochbaum already out of the Navy.

Lawson Beats NAS; Play Snipers Tonight

Led by Paul Crain, who caged 21 points, Lawson General hospital downed the Naval Air Station quintet by a 37-to-35 count last night at the Lawson gymnasium.

The Naval squad was in front 21 to 19 at the intermission. High scorer for the losers was Byrd, who registered 18 points.

The Lawson five will meet the strong Fort Benning Snipers at Lawson tonight. The contest is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock and will be preceded by a girls' game between the Lawson WACs and College Park, which will get under way at 7 p. m.

Devore to Accept New Coaching Job

McKEESPORT, Pa., Dec. 6.—(P)—Hugh Devore, coach of Notre Dame's football team this year, said tonight he plans to accept another head coaching assignment next year.

Here to address a banquet of the McKeesport Toger Boosters' Club, Devore said he had not yet decided which one of several "very good" offers to accept.

Rudy York Up For Sale By Detroit

By SID FEDER
COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 6.—(P)—The biggest stock of ivory up for sale, swamp or barter at the minor league trading mart is that collection of baseball talent which won the world's baseball championship for Detroit in 1945.

From what you hear around this lobby-sitting, sweepstakes, only seven members of the Detroit Tigers have much chance of hanging their hats under that world title flag come post time for the '46 campaign.

These possible holdovers are Pitchers: Hal Newhouse, Mr. Twenty Games himself; Virgil (Fire) Trucks and his smokeball, and Relfer George Caster, along with Hank Greenberg, who is just about a death-and-taxes clinch to be doing business at his old first base stand; Eddie Mayo, the "Cinderella Man" second sacker; Stringbean Paul Richards, who was all set to take things easy as a coach and now finds himself slated for catching duties again, and Skeeter Webb, who'll handle the utility infield chores.

Otherwise, you just "takes your pick" and put your cash on your trading bait on the line.

It is a most unusual situation to find practically the entire lineup of a world's championship club on the block, and ordinarily it would be something like a guy trying to peddle a million dollar bank account for what he can get on the open market. But such was 1945 baseball in general and the weird workmen of the series in particular.

Of course, if you ask the Bengal bosses to come right and officially list the sales inventory, you'll probably wind up in an interesting conversation about the weather. But it is virtually certain that First Baseman Rudy York is up for sale and that neither Outlaw nor Bob Maier, who couldn't quite add up to one world series third-sacker between them, won't be hanging out their shingle on the hot corner in 1946, either individually or collectively.

In place of the outfield that made those obliging curtsies at fly balls during the late series, there will be the returning hands from the armed forces, Pat Mullin and Barney McCosky, who can hit that 300 bullseye with practically no trouble, and Hoot Evers, a youngster from the University of Illinois and the Beaumont Texas League club who is rumored to be at least a reasonable facsimile of DiMaggio, Ruth and Cobb combined. Hoot's still working for Uncle Sam, but expects "out" by the start of the season.

From the word whipping through the lobby here, the Tigers may even be willing to part with Paul (Dizzy) Trout.

Mancha, Gilmer Make Collier's All-America

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(P)—The 1945 All-America football team selected by Collier's magazine includes four players from the all-victorious Army squad and two from Alabama's Rose Bowl eleven, it was announced today.

It is the 55th annual compilation of a mythical eleven by the magazine, which printed Walter Camp's selections from 1889 until his death in 1925. Grantland Rice has made Collier's selections since then, aided in recent years by an advisory board of football writers.

John Green, Army guard, is the only member of Collier's 1944 team to repeat this year.

The Team: Vaughn Mancha, Alabama, center; Warren Amling, Ohio State, and John Green, Army, guards; George Savitsky, Pennsylvania, and Dewitt Coulter, Army, tackles; Richard Duden, Navy, and Hubert Bechtel, Texas, ends; Herman Wedemeyer, St. Mary's, quarterback; Glenn Davis, Army, and Harry Gilmer, Alabama, halfbacks; Felix Blanchard, Army, fullback.

Tifton High Team Feted by School

TIFTON, Ga., Dec. 6.—The 18th annual football supper sponsored by Rev. D. C. Rainey was held at Tifton High school recently with Miss Hattie Powell and students from the home economics department serving. The supper consisted of Brunswick stew with all the trimmings and a good time was had by all.

Rev. Rainey presided and short talks were made by the following: G. O. Bailey Jr., C. A. Baker, R. H. Pittman, W. G. Windham, E. U. Holder, Lynn Lastinger, Coach Bruce Gressette, of Abac; Coach H. T. McDaniel, of THS, and Harvey Milner, co-captain of the team. Coach McDaniel was presented a gold miniature football by the team for his leadership during the football season. The football presentation was made by Harvey Milner.

'Bridegroom' Rutan Tops Miami Pros With 68

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 6.—(P)—Stocky Chick Rutan, of Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich., came to Miami on a honeymoon, but tonight led the field of the $10,000 Miami Open golf tournament with a two-under par 68.

The 34-year-old Rutan, who has never won a major tournament, paced the field of 220 golfers, largest number ever to participate in the event with his sub-par opening round.

Using his putter "as never before" and watched by his red-haired bride of six weeks, Rutan sank four birdies during the round which included eight one-putt greens. He went out in 34 and came back in the same number of strokes.

Seven were bunched at 69. Back another stroke at 70 was little Ben Hogan, of Hershey, Pa., the pre-tournament favorite.

Harold "Jug" McSpaden, of Sanford, Maine, who hasn't won an open since the Salt Lake City event in 1944, blasted his ball into the wooden bleachers back of the 18th green to take a five on the hole. A par four would have given him a 68 to tie Rutan.

Others at 69 were Henry Picard, of Cleveland, Ohio; K. J. (Dutch) Harrison, of Little Rock, Ark., winner of the event in 1944; To-

Council Group To Study Civil Service Plan

Pros and cons of a movement to bring nearly 1,000 additional city employees under jurisdiction of the city personnel board will be heard in a special session of city council's ordinance committee at 2 p. m. Monday.

Alderman Roscoe Ailor, committee chairman, has set the hearing on a proposed council resolution asking the legislature to amend city civil service laws to include departments not now under the board.

Four city departments proper—the police, fire, library and city attorney—were excluded from the civil service act when it was passed by the Georgia assembly, and certain divisions of the school system which had their own tenure provisions also have continued to function independent of the personnel board.

The issue was initiated when Alderman Ed A. Gilliam offered a resolution affecting the police department and Councilman J. Allen Couch offered an amendment affecting all city divisions not already under jurisdiction of the personnel board.

Approximately 3,000 city employees are already affiliated with civil service operations, and exclusive of schools, which some contend would not be affected by the Couch amendment, nearly 1,000 others would be added.

Other members of the ordinance committee in addition to Ailor are Aldermen Gilliam and Raleigh Drennon, and Councilmen James E. Jackson, John T. Marler and Howard Hale.

Triumphant Georgia 4-H'ers Pack Laurels and Head Home

By CHRISTINE JONES.
CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—It's been a beautiful week in Chicago for the Georgia delegation attending the National 4-H Club Congress.

The Georgia group established a record for the State 4-H Club by having eight national winners among the 27 state winners who were entered in the national contests. The previous record number of Georgia national winners is seven. Georgia and Maryland tied for second place in the number of national triumphs, with Indiana leading the field with 10.

On this closing day of the congress, the Georgia delegates have frantically tried to do last-minute packing and sight-seeing, sandwiched between entertainments and meetings.

"It's going to be awfully hard to leave," Barbara Kimbell, state bread winner from Chattooga county, sighed.

MUCH TO SEE

"There's so much more to see," Grace Winham, winner in the girl's record contest from Wheeler county, added. "Gosh, we haven't even seen Lake Michigan yet. But, we've had a wonderful time and everybody's been grand. I'll always remember this trip."

The girls and boys agreed that the entertainment provided them during the week was "tops." Such stars as Gene Autry, Olsen and Johnson, the Borah Minnevetich Harmonica Comedy team, and many other stage and radio entertainers added glamour to the congress in big doses.

At last night's annual dinner of the congress, the happiest Georgia 4-H'ers were the national winners, who were presented their awards.

The national winners who received $200 scholarships and the Chicago trip were: Raelle Parker, food preparation winner from Muscogee county; Virginia Flowers, canning winner from Wayne county; Mae Cagle, clothing winner from Cherokee county; Lydia Bray, poultry winner from Johnson county; and Billy McKenzie, safety winner from Chatham county.

FIRST GEORGIANS

Those receiving other awards were Martha Sue Harris, victory garden winner from Barrow county, who was awarded a $100 Victory Bond and the trip to the congress; Robertine Jackson, home grounds beautification winner from Chattooga county, who was presented a gold wrist watch and the trip; and Bill Harrell, soil conservation winner from Johnson county, who received the free trip to the congress.

The two boys who were named national winners are first of the Georgia 4-H boys to receive national awards at the congress. The Georgia group spent this morning preparing for the train trip ahead and then attended the farewell luncheon given by J. L. Kraft, chairman of the Kraft Foods Company.

They chatted in the lounge of the hotel with the 4-H'ers from other parts of the country.

At the luncheon, they sang louder than ever, when the congress song leader, "Mr. Peter" Donaldson, executive dean of the Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College, waved his hands and snapped his fingers to the beat of the music.

After the luncheon and when the last goodbyes were said, the delegates headed for Dearborn station and home.

"I sure do envy the fellows coming up next year," Jerry Thomas, cotton state winner from Oconee county, said. "Some day, I hope I can get back up here."

"Me too," Thomas Melton, farm fence state winner from Fulton county, added. "Yes sir, everything's been perfect, except that it didn't snow. Like the man on the radio says, it's been a beautiful day in Chicago, every day we've been here."

HE LAUGHS BEST WHO LAUGHS LAST

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Dec. 6.—(P)—Anything can happen these days when it comes to renting a house. George C. Taylor, district OPA rent attorney, says this happened:

An apartment house owner evicted four families to raze the building as the site for a business structure.

One of the evicted tenants bought a house and evicted the renter who was the apartment house owner.

BAILEY'S SUPREME COFFEE

"LEAVES NO GROUNDS FOR COMPLAINT"

People are often amazed when they watch the painstaking methods we use to give you the best of all coffee, Bailey's. From the inspection and air-washing of the rare and fragrant beans, right down to the slicing that seals in all the natural goodness, we spare neither expense nor effort.

DIAPER SERVICE MERGER UNFOLDS

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6.—(P)—The formation of a $4,000,000 corporation, said to be "the world's largest diaper service," was announced Thursday by Morris A. Bonoff, president of Associated Baby Service, Inc., of New York City.

The announcement was made in connection with a joint statement by Bonoff and Irving K. Weil, executive of New Orleans Laundries, Inc., of the purchase by Associated Baby Service, Inc., of 10 laundry plants in New Orleans.

Bonoff said a dozen baby service and diaper service companies in several cities had been merged to form the $4,000,000 corporation.

Archbishop Offers To Aid In Kidnap Case

CHELSEA, Mass., Dec. 6.—(UP) Archbishop Richard J. Cushing, of Boston, offered Thursday to act as intermediary between the kidnaper of six-month-old Ronald Carlan and the infant's heartbroken sailor-father.

In a dramatic move, the Catholic prelate volunteered to serve as go-between in restoring the tot to his parents who have pleaded in vain for the baby's return since Nov. 28.

The baby's parents—James J. Carlan, of the Navy, and his wife Rose—are both members of the Catholic faith. The archbishop's offer followed Mrs. Carlan's third radio plea earlier today for the return of her baby. Shortly afterward, she received a telephone call from a woman who reported seeing a strange baby in her neighborhood. Police immediately questioned the new informant, hoping for some clue that would end their eight-day-old search.
